CURRENCY BILL PUT THROUGH

Trickery Resorted To To Squelch Opposition.

Aldrich Triumphs By Securing Rollcall.

Stone and Gore Follow La Follette With Speeches.

PRESIDENT SIGNS THE BILL.

Washington, May 30.—[Special.]—After a record-breaking one-man filibuster, Senator La Follette, by a vote of 43 to 22 adopted the conference report on the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill, which with the President's approval makes the measure law.

After an unparalleled one-man speech record, Senator La Follette at 7:30 o'clock this morning yielded the floor to Senator Stone, who, becoming exhausted after several hours of almost continuous speaking, yielded in turn to Senator Gore. When Senator Gore resumed his speech, he made no mention of the filibuster. He said: "I call for a vote on the conference report." Immediately the Vice President arose. "Finally," he said, "the object of the filibuster is accomplished. The roll call is called. The roll is called. When the vote has been announced, and a lively skirmish between Senator La Follette and Senator Aldrich over reconsideration had been settled, Senator La Follette said: "The bill is passed. I have no more to say in this matter." He then retired.

La Follette Changes Vote.

Before the roll call had been completed Senator La Follette, who had come into the chamber a short time before the roll call, changed his vote from "aye" to "nay." He had been under a great deal of pressure to change his vote, and he had done so.

Fighters Absent.

In the meantime La Follette and Stone, weary by their long speeches, were out of the chamber. Both arrived while the roll call was in progress and were surprised and annoyed to find that the roll call had been completed. They were not allowed to make the roll call. As soon as the Vice President announced the result of the roll call, Senator La Follette and Senator Stone were moved to the gallery. Senator La Follette said: "I have no more to say in this matter." He then retired.

Democrats Angry.

The Senate Democrats were already in a bad mood, and their leaders declined to enter into a filibuster against the currency bill on the ground that it was a matter of course. They declared the bill was not one which would demand a filibuster, but the action last night of the Republicans in sustaining the chair in his ruling against La Follette's right to insist on a roll call, and the necessity of maintaining a quorum.

But the galleries were for a large part of the day only half filled. Spectators came in slowly, and it was well high midnight before the Democrats were compelled to turn applicants away.

Senator Stone, who occupied the floor from 7 o'clock until 11 o'clock, spent most of his time in reading public documents and newspaper extracts, and spoke for the most part in so low a tone of voice that he called out many remonstrances even from Senators who sat near him. He spoke so softly that he was hardly audible to the people in the galleries.

Senator Gore spoke with much distinctness, and as he was unable to read, he read from a book of prayers, which he held in his hands, as well as from the occupants of the floor.

President Pleased.

President Roosevelt's first information of the close of the currency bill was communicated by the Associated Press, and the President's exuberance was plainly manifest. "I will go to the Capital as soon as that bill is ready to sign," he said.

President Signs Bill.

The President shortly before 10 o'clock signed the comprehensive currency bill and presented the pen he had used in affixing his signature to Representative Wilson, of Chicago.

Previous to affixing his signature to the currency bill the President had handed it to Secretary Cortis, who carefully read its provisions. Several members of the Cabinet were present, Secretaries Root and Gifford. The President in conversing with several members of the Cabinet, he was very well satisfied with the accomplishment of the congressional session.

An hour after he arrived at the Capital the President had signed all the bills placed before him, including the public building bill, the currency bill, the Government employes' liability bill.

Cordial Greeting.

The President was in evening dress with a white rose in his lapel. As he came to the door he was met by a crowd of Senators, who had a stream of callers. His first guests were particularly cordial to Vice President La Follette and Senator Aldrich. Republican and Democratic Senators were about equally represented among those who sought the President's room.

LA FOLLETTE BREAKS RECORD.

Spoke Continuously For Eighteen Hours and Forty-Three Minutes.

Washington, May 30.—Whatever else has been accomplished by Senator La Follette in his filibuster in the Senate against the adoption of the conference report on the currency bill, it has gained a championship. At 7:30 o'clock today he yielded the floor to Mr. Stone, of Missouri, after having spoken for a record-breaking one-man speech.

they were persuaded to change their minds and forego the intention of expressing their views.

Sudden End of Filibuster.

The end of the filibuster came with a suddenness that was almost startling. When Senator La Follette, after having spoken for two hours, it was the opinion among those who were not in the confidence of the leaders that the end of the filibuster was at hand. In fact, the end was at hand. It was generally understood that Senator La Follette would attempt to resume his speech and that Senator La Follette also would make a determined fight to regain the floor.

As Senator Gore resumed his seat, Vice President La Follette promptly stated that the conference report on the adoption of the conference report, and that under orders of the Senate, previously adopted, a vote and day would be taken. This announcement was made by the Vice President in a matter of fact manner, but it was the final touch to the most important legislation of the session.

While the Vice President was still speaking, Senator La Follette, who was on his feet demanding reconsideration, but the clerk had commenced to call the roll before Senator La Follette could speak. He then retired.

Heyburn Squelched.

"Is there objection?" asked the Vice President.

"If object," said Mr. Gallinger.

"If you object what I am going to do you will not rise so much fuss about it," retorted Senator Heyburn.

ROYAL WORCESTER CORSETS

MEDIUM AND FULL FIGURES

SEVERAL interesting letters received recently from numerous ADJUSTO wearers seem to prove conclusively that the ADJUSTO, although usually regarded as suitable only for full figures, is equally adapted to those of less generous proportions.

From the various expressions of enthusiastic praise of this ideal corset are the following:—

"I am of medium figure and a wearer of size 22. My duties require my standing most of the time, and until I wore the ADJUSTO it was difficult to finish my day's work without becoming exhausted. I can now do more work with less exertion, and feel much better. It supports my figure perfectly, and is the strongest and most serviceable corset I have ever worn."

Another remarked:—"Since wearing the ADJUSTO my hips, abdomen and waist have become noticeably smaller, and my figure is greatly improved. In all other corsets I require size 27, but I wear a size 25 ADJUSTO with perfect ease."

The new ADJUSTO, styles 611 and 615, for medium and full figures. Especially adapted to those desiring very long flat hips and back.

The ADJUSTO styles, 610 and 614, for full figures. Known and worn everywhere and still growing in favor. Absolutely without an equal.

THE ADJUSTO FASHIONABLY SHAPES YOUR FIGURE

by decreasing and flattening the abdomen, reducing the hips and creating the new straight back and flat hip effect. All flesh not rightly proportioned is moulded into graceful lines. The ADJUSTO is shape retaining, very serviceable and will not rust. The batiste models are ideal for summer wear, being very cool and comfortable.

CURRENCY BILL PUT THROUGH.

almost continuously for eighteen hours and forty-three minutes, and his voice seemed to be almost as fresh as when he began.

If Senators Stone and Gore, the latter being credited with willingness to assist in the filibuster, can do as well, the filibuster is far from an end. This is not the case, however, as the now apparently erroneous report that Senator Jeff Davis was to take a hand. The Republican leaders apparently have no programme other than to try to wear out the filibusters.

The previous record for long speech in the Senate was made by former Senator Allen, of Nebraska, who opposed the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman law. He was aided by other Senators, who took much of the strain from his voice by frequently reading extracts from his remarks. La Follette had no assistance of that character. In fact, his task was made as difficult as possible by placing interpretation into his remarks, which were so full of meaning and demands for the calling of the roll to determine the existence of a quorum.

This ruling was made after there had been more than thirty rollcalls of the Senate, and was based on the fact that there had been no debate held since the former call, debate being held not to be business.

Unprecedented Endurance.

After Mr. La Follette had been twice recognized by the chair an old ruling, invoked a number of years ago, at the suggestion of former Senator David B. Hill, of New York, to the effect that a Senator cannot speak more than twice on a subject in one legislative day unless other business intervenes, was brought up.

As the Senate will continue the currency discussion under the legislative date of May 29, Mr. La Follette realized that he could not get the floor again if he surrendered it. As a result he gave an unprecedented exhibition of endurance. He spoke for all the time he was on the floor, and he was wholly without sympathy for his effort, and he had but few supporters in the Democratic ranks.

The night was one that will long be remembered by Senators. The heat in the chamber was oppressive, and the attempts to maintain a quorum prevented the fifty odd Senators now in the city from doing much. Finally the sergeant-at-arms was directed to keep these Senators at the Capitol, which was an almost impossible task. As soon as some of them were brought in they would answer to their names and depart for their homes. The Republican leaders were particularly anxious that Senators Stone and Gore should be permitted to get an undisturbed night's rest and they were routed out of bed by the deputy sergeants-at-arms of the Senate. They were brought into the chamber half-dressed, but they did not remain long enough for their disability to be generally noticed.

Breast With Egg and Milk.

Throughout the day and night Senator La Follette sustained himself on a punch of egg and milk and on one occasion during a rollcall he ate a sandwich. He husbanded his strength by sitting on the arm of his chair as he talked and for the most part his speech was delivered in a conversational and dispassionate tone.

There have been a number of famous filibustering episodes in the history of the Senate, but none, perhaps, ever has been supported by so small a body of men as the "lone filibuster" of Mr. La Follette. Never yet has the Senate failed finally to act on a measure when a majority of that body favored such action.

President Cleveland summoned Congress in extraordinary session, and the fight was then made to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman law. Congress met August 7, 1893; the law was approved November 1 following, and adjournment was taken November 8, 1893.

On October 11 the Senate met at 11 o'clock in the morning, and did not adjourn again until 1:45 on the morning of October 13. About 6 o'clock on the night of October 11, Senator W. V. Allen, of Nebraska, a Populist, took the floor and began a speech in opposition to the bill.

He held the floor uninterruptedly until a few minutes after 8 o'clock the next morning, speaking all the time, save when points of no quorum were made or he was "spelled" by some one else for a few minutes through the reading of newspaper and other articles with which his speech was interpolated.

Allen's Record Broken.

Mr. Allen was on his feet for fourteen hours and up to date he held the record for long-distance speaking in the Congress of the United States. At the time it was stated that he had been extended but once, and then by only a couple of hours, in the British House of Commons. Mr. Allen was materially aided by Senators Jeffery, Kyle, Senator Pfeiffer will be remembered as the possessor of the longest whistle-korn that ever obtained a seat in the United States Senate. He was on his feet most of the succeeding night to refresh himself, drank copiously and frequently from a large bowl of gruel that stood on his desk.

The defeat of a river and harbor bill by Senator Carter is too recent to have been forgotten. This was at the end of a short session and was done with the approval of the President. Mr. Carter talked whenever talking was necessary, but always gave way to the hour of disputation. He had been on his feet for several hours when the hands of the Senate clock pointed to the hour of disputation. The President's gavel fell for the closing words.

The famous filibuster that killed the "force" bill in the Fifty-first Congress was participated in by Republicans as well as Democrats. Mr. Aldrich then, as now, the tactical leader of the Senate, introduced a resolution providing for cloture. This shifted the discussion from the "force" bill to the currency bill. It was offered December 29, 1890.

The discussion had continued until January 22, 1891, when Senator Wolcott of Colorado, moved the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill. The Republicans endeavored to lay this motion on the table, for its success meant the permanent laying aside of the "force" bill, but Mr. Aldrich's motion prevailed by a vote of thirty-five to thirty-four. That ended the filibuster.

Mr. La Follette's record in this speech began shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was only interrupted a few times by others than himself. He frequently threw out a rollcall and two dozen or more were taken during the session. Mr. La Follette's secretary, who was seated on the floor when it was found he was supplying the speaker with information as to the number of Senators present.

Sorry To Yield Floor.

Mr. La Follette at 7:30 o'clock this morning announced that he was "reluctant" to yield the floor, but he said he realized that other Senators desired to speak. Messrs. Aldrich and Stone arose simultaneously, the former being recognized. He moved that when a vote should be taken on the currency question, the adoption of the conference report, the ayes and noes be called. This motion was carried and Mr. Aldrich yielded to Mr. Stone, who began his remarks, which he said to some of his colleagues might be continued for six or seven hours or so. Obviously he was puzzled by Mr. Aldrich's motion, and he asked what had been gained by it. He did not learn.

Speaking in a voice so low that he could not be heard distinctly five feet away, Mr. Stone exhorted his aroused protests, especially from Senator Scott.

"The remarks are of sufficient interest the Senator can come forward," certainly shall not go backward," answered Mr. Stone.

Finally Mr. La Follette was satisfied that his successor was in trim for the fray, for he laughed at the colloquy and left the chamber to secure much-needed sleep. When Mr. Stone began speaking there were not more than a dozen Senators on the floor, and a greater number in the galleries.

On the Republican side of the chamber Senators Aldrich, Gallinger, Carter, Kean and a few others had remained in their seats all night, and when half an hour after he had begun, Mr. Stone expressing a desire to address his remarks to his Democratic colleagues, especially looked about the chamber in a wistful manner, he made one or two ineffectual efforts to call for a quorum, but under last night's rulings his demand was declared out of order, and was also an appeal by Mr. Gore from this decision.

Stone In Controversy.

Mr. Aldrich broke into the discussion with a remark that he has seen a statement in the newspapers "that the Senator from Missouri is here with a mission to speak in behalf of one of the Vice President Fairbanks if there was any fully of the Senate to get that fixes the volume of voice that a Senator in addressing that body must use.

This inquiry, which was made amid laughter, was answered by the presiding officer to the effect that the chair knew of no written rule governing the subject.

Senator Gallinger thought the speaker should use sufficient voice to be heard by the presiding officer, otherwise some improper language might get into the record.

Mr. Stone using language that ought not to be in the record it seems to me that I am doing a very proper thing to whisper to you the solemn rejoinder of Senator Stone.

Recess Taken.

At 1:35 o'clock, on motion of Senator Aldrich, the Senate took a recess for half an hour. Messrs. Stone and Batiste, who had been in the room waiting for their luncheon without being called back into the chamber. Proceeding this action there had been a long and a minutes discussion on Senator Stone's method of proceeding, which culminated in a point of order by Senator Potter to the effect that the reading of documents and papers as indulged in by Mr. Stone was contrary to the rules of the Senate and to Jefferson's manual. Mr. Foraker contended that under these rules no paper could be read except by the consent of the Senate, and his point was pending when recess was taken.

After Stone.

Senators had scarcely left their seats after the recess was declared when the fact became known that instead of suspending the proceedings for the purpose of luncheon as announced, the real intent of the recess was to afford an opportunity to make certain representations to Senator Stone, which it was believed would have the effect of inducing him to cease his obstructions. The motion for recess was made by Senator Aldrich upon a request from Democratic Senators, and they immediately surrounded the Missouri Senator with the view of bringing him to see the futility of his proceeding. They were apparently successful with him, as was shown by the fact that after the convening of the Senate at 2 o'clock, when the fact became apparent that Senator Foraker's point of order was intended to play its part in influencing Mr. Stone to stop his filibuster and yield the floor. He did yield, but only temporarily, and he subsequently announced that he would insist on resuming as soon as Mr. Gore should cease speaking.

When the Senate met again, Senator Stone entered a vigorous, though brief protest against the point of order made by Senator Foraker, and Senators Bacon and Teller requested the Ohio Senator to withdraw it, claiming that it raised an improper question, and one that should be debated at length.

Senator Foraker agreed with them as to the importance of the point and yielding to their importunities, withdrew it, reserving the right to press it later if, in his judgment, the occasion arose.

Senator Stone then announced he would not continue his speech at this time and yielded the floor to Senator Gore, of Oklahoma.

Senator Gore Takes Floor.

The blind Senator disclaimed any responsibility for the protraction of the debate. It has been the usual eagerness for discussion and enlightenment on the other side of the chamber which has caused this debate to drag its slow length along, he said he promised at the beginning of his remarks that he would not violate the rule which forbids the reading by Senators. He referred to the pending bill as a pernicious measure, and he continued, "It is as bad as the limitations of human justice could make it."

Senator Gore called attention to the fact that the pending question, namely, the adoption or rejection of the conference report, was a question of the merits of the bill, and he said that he did not intend to read anything, but he would make a statement of his own, and if it held them as securities for a loan it could not re-hy-pothesize them.

Mr. Stone continued his remarks, reading extensively from newspapers. At 8 o'clock there was a slight increase in the attendance in the galleries, but there were even fewer Senators in their seats than when Mr. Stone began his address.

Quoting from an editorial in the New York Evening Post a statement that the President was aiding in the passage of the bill, Mr. Stone said:

"For the Sake of Party."

"But think of the incomparable Roosevelt lending his aid to the passage of a bill merely to bridge over a crisis in his party. We have been told that he did everything from purely patriotic motives and with exalted purposes. But now the Senator from Indiana, the Senator from Ohio and the Senator from Wyoming all join with the President for the sake of party."

Mr. Stone taxed Mr. Aldrich with failing to give sufficient attention to the advice of bankers in framing the currency bill. Mr. Aldrich asked whether Mr. Stone would turn such legislation over to the bankers. The Missouri Senator replied in the negative, but said that he would give heed to their presentations. Later Mr. Stone gave his attention to the original Senate amendment prohibiting loans by banks to their directors.

Mr. La Follette's remark was offered by your new political leader, Mr. La Follette, Mr. Aldrich said.

"This is the first time," responded Mr. Stone amid general laughter.

By far the largest part of Mr. Stone's address consisted of the reading of newspaper extracts. For the most part he spoke in low and monotonous tones and could not be heard ten feet from him.

Senator Stone's effort to conserve his strength by reading the various documents from which he was quoting in a low tone called forth a protest from Senator Teller, who complained that although he was seated near the speaker he could not hear a word he was saying and suggested that if the Senator was physically unable to read, he might have the clerk read for him.

Reads State Reports.

Senator Stone read from a statement of former Controller of the Currency, Dawes, before the House Banking and Currency Committee, made during the consideration of the Aldrich bill. He had not proceeded far when Senator Aldrich arose and said that as this was an impartial statement he thought it should go in the record in full and suggested that Senator Stone insert it as part of his remarks.

"I prefer the pleasure of reading it," answered Senator Stone with a smile, but a few moments later he handed it to the clerk to be read under the rules of the reading of other public documents.

The full proceedings of the reading was interrupted by a discussion which was participated in by Senators Stone, Aldrich, Gallinger and Dewey, the last two endeavoring to get the Missouri Senator to raise his voice. Senator Aldrich first called attention to the fact that the Senator's hearing had been heard at any distance from him, bringing from Mr. Stone the retort "I cannot hear it if the Senator's hearing is bad."

"My hearing is extremely good," rejoined Senator Aldrich, "and I venture that the Senators within six feet of me can hear, and I hope it will be for his good."

Senator Stone at this point asked

The Oldest Department Store In Louisville

Celebrates During the Whole Month of June Its Sixty-Third Anniversary.

JEREMIAH BACON, Sr.
Founder of the Store.

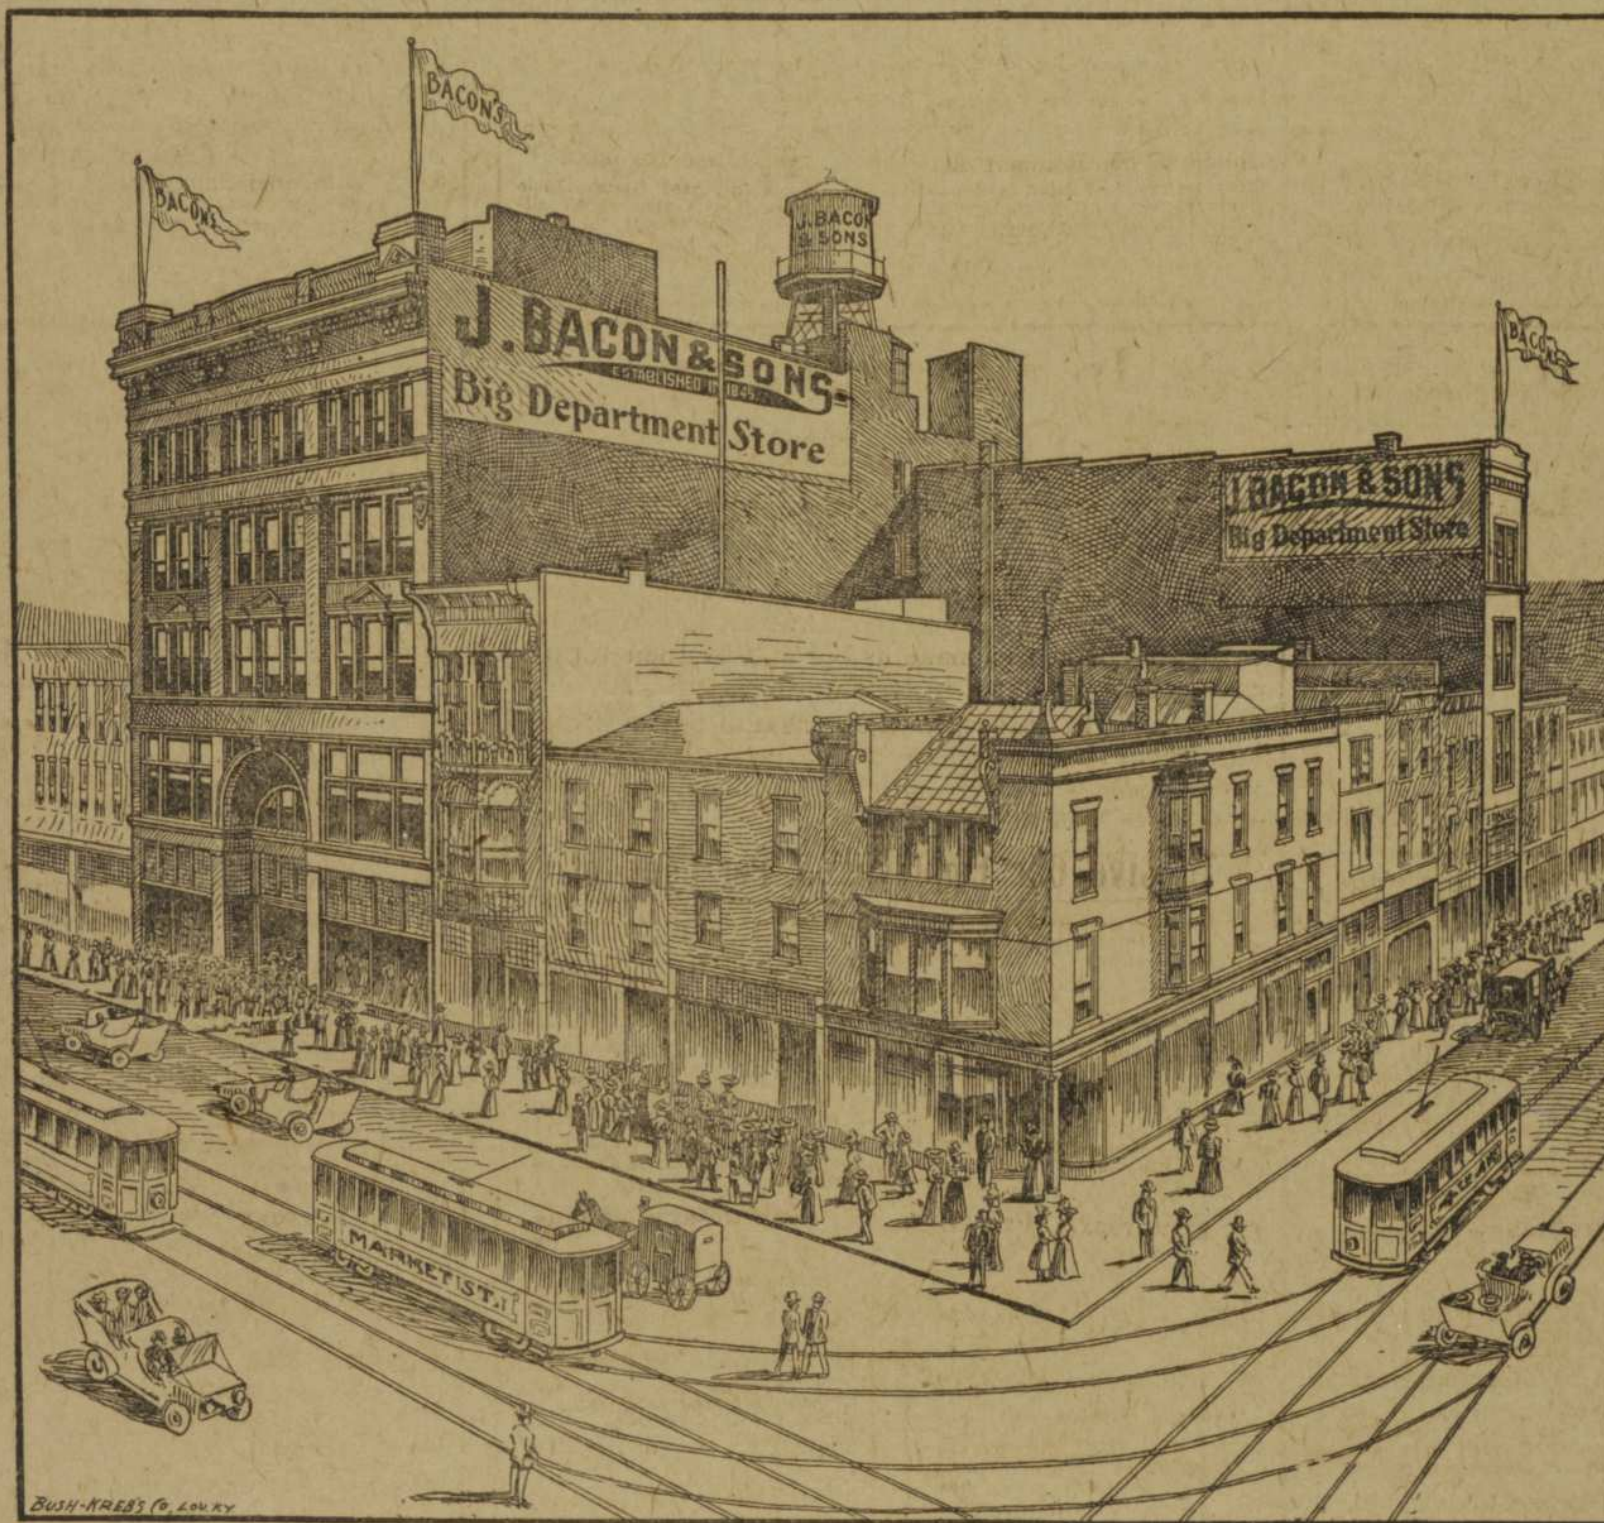

The Event, to Which We Cordially Invite Everybody, Will Be Attended By a Series of the Best Money-Saving Values This Store Has Ever Offered.

FOR SIXTY-THREE YEARS this store has enjoyed the confidence of the buying public, not alone in Louisville, but also for many miles around. It has stood the test of time, it has grown wonderfully and grows daily, because it was built and stands to-day on that immovable, unwavering and never-failing foundation--INTEGRITY. It has sold your grandparents their wedding outfits and their homefurnishings; to-day it is ready to serve you better than at any previous time and on the same principles that made your forefathers patrons of this store.

SIXTY-THREE YEARS is a long time--much longer than the average life of man; during these many years this store has been able, through practical experience, to learn storekeeping thoroughly--more thoroughly than any other store in Louisville, because no other store is near so old. The proof of this elongated experience is best demonstrated by the growth of the establishment, not alone in size, but in the volume of satisfied customers. From the very birth of this store up to the present day the inflexible policy was to give every purchaser a "SQUARE DEAL," to make every one who enters the portals of its doors feel perfectly at home, whether they wish to buy, to look, to take a rest or to meet their friends, and to bind every transaction with that always reliable safeguard--"Satisfaction or your money back."

WE are going to celebrate this SIXTY-THIRD ANNIVERSARY in a big out-of-the-ordinary way. SIXTY-THREE years is a long business record and worthy of doing something great. And how are we going to celebrate and make manifest our appreciation of our customers' patronage and good will? Not by giving away souvenirs, rather in a more substantial and appreciable way. We are going to offer seasonable, up-to-date merchandise so cheap that the memory of this most important event will be alive when a souvenir will have long been forgotten.

Many a day and many an extra effort have been expended by our buyers in preparing for this Anniversary Sale. They were sent to the principal markets of the country with instructions to buy cheaper than ever before, because in this sale we wanted to sell cheaper. We are ready, the goods are here--carloads of them--and will be placed on sale commencing Monday morning. Come and bring your friends with you; let them also enjoy the fruits of this bargain feast. Also watch all succeeding advertisements; we will offer each day something different--something of great interest. See our other big advertisement on opposite page.

Thousands Attend Services At Cave Hill Cemetery.

Veterans and Khaki-clad Boys March Together.

Address of Day By Judge J.
Wheeler McGee.

GRAVES FLOWER - STREWN.

Over 10,000 people of Louisville, young and old, with the spirit of patriotism swelling in their bosoms, journeyed to beautiful Cave Hill cemetery yesterday afternoon and upon the green and fragrant slopes paid homage to the Federal soldiers who lie buried there and who fought for their country nearly a half century ago. No grander spectacle was ever witnessed than when the great throng of humanity, stretching from the speakers' stand down in the valley to the brow of the hill above on all sides, stood with bowed heads in reverence to the memory of the brave dead as the Rev. J. F. P. Kayhoe invoked the divine blessings on the occasion.

The occasion was made memorable from the fact that Confederate soldiers and their families were also there to join in the solemn services. This was alluded to in a most beautiful manner by Judge Wheeler McGee, who delivered the address of the day. Col. William B. Haldeman, commander of the First Regiment, who himself was a Confederate soldier, with his staff, had seats on the speakers' platform. At the same time that homage was being paid to the memory of those who fell in the Civil War, over in another part of the cemetery surviving comrades and friends were showing respect to the memory of the dead who fought in the Spanish-American War.

The two battalions of the First Regiment, in command of Col. Haldeman, sweeping around the beautiful driveway of Cave Hill, preceded by the Union Veterans, beneath almost a cloudless sky, to strains of music that reminded the older ones of warlike days, was a scene that will long be remembered by the hosts that stood on the hills and in the dais and waved and cheered them all. Old men said that they had never witnessed a more imposing scene in their lives.

Parade Reaches Cemetery Gates.

It was 2 o'clock when the First Regiment, in command of Col. Haldeman, arrived at the entrance to the cemetery, having escorted the Spanish-American War veterans from the Armory to the cemetery. The Union Veterans were in waiting, as was also the band of the Louisville Industrial School. John Fey, chief marshal of the day, was on hand and he had the veterans in line by the time the First Regiment swung in from Broadway. The Industrial School Band headed the line of march, followed by the veterans of the George H. Thomas Post. Next came the Walter H. Whitaker Post and then the members of several colored posts.

At the word "march" the thing in progress at the entrance to the cemetery were swung open and the journey to the Federal burying ground began. The route, which is fully a half mile, was lined with people on all sides. Fully an hour before the march began several thousands of people surrounded the speakers' stand, where they patiently awaited the coming of the veterans. All carried bouquets of flowers. Many placed their flowers on the graves of loved ones early in the afternoon, which with the little nation's flags stuck at the head of each grave presented a most imposing scene. Old men stood around in silence, thinking of the days long gone. Women wept in front of the graves of loved ones long since dead, while little children with armsful of flowers ran hither and thither, scattering flowers, innocently ignorant of the real meaning of the demonstration.

Veterans in Place of Honor.

A large place was reserved in front of the grandstand for the veterans. As the column swung in from the main driveway the Industrial Band passed in front of the stand to the extreme left. The old veterans, in their khaki uniforms, stood in the front of the stand, scattering on all sides. One of Col. Haldeman's battalions, under command of Maj. Col. Haldeman, marched to another part of the cemetery, while the other battalion stacked arms on the brow of the hill. The staff officers then went to the stand where seats had been reserved for them.

The services were very short, not over thirty minutes being consumed, but they were most impressive and enjoyed by all. L. W. Lindley, chairman of the committee on arrangements, was master of the occasion. The services were opened by prayer by the Rev. J. F. P. Kayhoe, pastor of the Grace English Lutheran church. In his brief prayer he said that it was a great blessing for such a large concourse of people to be permitted to assemble and witness the funeral of the brave dead. He thanked God that He had dealt better with America than many other nations. He acknowledged that many were present to pay their respects to the memory of those who had fought to give us liberty and an undivided country. He acknowledged that all our glory and prosperity came from Divine power and not from efforts of our own. He fervently asked for a continuance of the blessings that have been showered upon this nation.

Judge McGee Addresses Veterans.

Judge J. Wheeler McGee, Judge of the Police Court, was introduced as the speaker of the occasion, after the address of President Lincoln on the first anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg had been read by Chairman Lindley. In the beginning, Judge McGee deplored the fact that his voice was not of sufficient volume to reach half the people who stood around the stand. Said he:

"You have just listened to a speech delivered forty-five years ago by President Lincoln on the battlefield of Gettysburg. Every succeeding year, patriotic day patriots people all over the United States have met to express their sympathies and show some act of devotion to the memory of those who died in the war. Eloquent men have spent their best thought and their most eloquent efforts to express in words what they thought properly interpreted the feelings of the American people for the sacrifices of soldiers. Never one of these great orators has ever approached the first oration to the Federal dead as President Lincoln expressed it. How simple and how impressive were his words."

"We have met here to-day to do honor to those Federal dead whose graves we are passing. At this season, the resurrection season of the year, we to-day are bending over graves, scattering flowers, and weeping over the dead we loved so well in life. But have we met here to-day simply to go through this thing perfunctorily, as if that is all that is in our purpose we have failed to catch the keynote of the great oration of Abraham Lincoln. These dead fought for principles that they advocated. They contended that the government for the people should not perish from the earth. You are here to dedicate yourselves for something connected with this great Government of ours. Lincoln began his oration by saying that four-score years and seven ago a new nation was brought forth, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are born free and equal. To-day we can say six-score and twelve years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are free. Is it not important to say it to-day as for Lincoln to say it?

Country Reunited and Prosperous.

"We are a united country, but we were not then. We find here to-day persons of all political persuasions. Old Confederate veterans are here. We have with us to-day the handsome and brave leader of the Louisville Legion, who in former years differed with us in sentiment. The most impressive scene to-day was to see the surviving veterans march before us. We must not lose sight of the respect and honor we owe them. They underwent hardships, although they are with us to-day, but remember you had another duty to perform. You should dedicate your lives so that you may be able to do as much for your country as those who have already sacrificed their lives for it."

C. H. Dye, former State Senator, read a poem which was dedicated to the dead soldiers of the country. This concluded the exercises. The crowd dispersed to different parts of the cemetery, where they placed flowers on the graves of the dead. The exercises at the graves of the Spanish-American War veterans were also brief.

Harvey Helm Back From Washington

WILL LEAVE SHORTLY FOR TRIP TO PANAMA.

TO VISIT PHILIPPINES ALSO THIS SUMMER.

PREPARING FOR CONVENTION.

Lexington, Ky., May 30.--[Special.]--Congressman Harvey Helm, of the Eighth district, was in Lexington a few hours to-day on his way from Washington to his home at Stanford. Mr. Helm sails on June 13 for Panama, and expects to return in time to attend the Democratic National Convention at Denver, but will not be able to be present at the State Convention in this city on June 11. Mr. Helm is a member of the Insular Committee, which will make a tour of the Philippines this summer, and he expects to sail for San Francisco for Manila soon after the Denver convention. Mr. Helm believes that the President will call an extra session of Congress in December, and expects to return in time for that.

Only Twenty-Five Delegates.

At separate meetings held to-day by the Democratic county and city committees it was decided to send twenty-five delegates to the State Convention next Saturday afternoon to select delegates to the State Convention on June 11. As the city of Lexington cast 3,416 Democratic votes for Farker for President, he will be entitled to seventeen delegates, and the county of Fayette outside the city cast 1,832 votes. It will have eight delegates. The county and city combined will therefore have twenty-five delegates in the State Convention instead of twenty-six, with which the city and county have previously been accredited.

Membership Grows.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Fayette County Bryan Club Col. John R. Allen, the chairman, announced that the club now had over 800 members. He urged that the members of the members of the club to attend the Democratic convention next Saturday and do all they could toward advancing the principles of the club. Col. Allen also said that a number of clubs had been formed in various other parts of the State and had adopted the principles of the Bryan club here. County Judge F. A. Bullock, former State Treasurer Henry M. Bosworth and other Democratic leaders attended the meeting.

Decoration Day Exercises.

Decoration day was observed in this city by the closing of the banks and public offices. The graves of the Federal soldiers who are buried in the Lexington cemetery were decorated this morning and impressive exercises were held this afternoon at the cemetery.

A prayer by Prof. B. P. Pinkerton was followed by "My Country 'Tis of Thee," sung by a chorus in charge of Prof. Croxon.

Capt. John T. Gunn, Adjutant, read abutaries.

Following "Tenting To-night," Capt. J. S. Sams read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" was sung.

Dr. G. A. Hubble, of Transylvania University, delivered the annual address. After the "Star-Spangled Banner" had been sung a benediction closed the exercises.

Convention Badges Ordered.

The special committee on badges for the State Convention, of which J. T. Greenbaum, of Louisville, is chairman, has ordered 3,400 badges of various kinds. The badges for delegates, alternates and guests will bear the party emblem and will be different in color. The badges for the press will be handsome medallions of gun-metal, bearing the new seal of Kentucky, which consists of likenesses of John C. Breckinridge and Abraham Lincoln with hands joined. The badges for members of local and State committees and chairman and secretary of the convention will also be unusually handsome and attractive. The doorkeepers and sergeants-at-arms will wear badges with the shield of the Experiment Station. They are "Bureau of Information, State Convention," will be placed over the Louisville hotel Natchez ticket office opposite the Phoenix Hotel, where the bureau will establish its quarters next Monday.

Sheep Dip Experiments.

The Department of Animal Husbandry of the State Experiment Station at Kentucky State University has completed a series of experiments on various forms of dip for sheep which are effected with scab or vermin. Prof. E. S. Goode, who has had charge of the experiments, said that scab, which is one of the diseases most dreaded by owners of sheep, is really one of the least cured of all the diseases of domestic animals. Three kinds of dip have been found to be satisfactory at the Experiment Station. They are lime and sulphur, tobacco, and one of the coal tar dips, and each one, they announced, proves effective, although it is said that the lime and sulphur dip is the one that has been used with the best results. Against the last named dip there is considerable prejudice on account of the lime being injurious to the wool, although, according to Prof. Goode, if the solution is properly made, it will not materially affect the wool.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

A bill was passed by the House providing for the printing of 10,000 copies of the preliminary report of the Inland Waterways Commission, with illustrations.

Representative George F. Huff, of the Twenty-second district of Pennsylvania, is critically ill at his residence in this city. His condition became alarming Friday night, but yesterday he was reported to be somewhat improved. Mr. Huff's illness is attributed to a general breakdown with possibly other complications. His illness dates from Wednesday. Mr. Huff's home is at Greensburg, Pa. He is 66 years old.

CONGRESS QUILTS UNTIL WINTER

Adjournment Comes Shortly Before Midnight.

House Rushes Many Measures Through.

Democrats Have Fun At the Last Moment.

OBJECTION BY MR. WILLIAMS.

Washington, May 30.--Both houses of Congress adjourned sine die at 11:30 o'clock to-night.

ADJOURNMENT OF HOUSE.

Many Bills Passed At the Closing Session.

Washington, May 30.--Having concluded its labors for the session the House adjourned sine die at ten minutes before midnight. The news that the currency bill had passed the Senate quickly reached the House and evoked great applause. From that time on business moved with a rapidity that signified a speedy termination of the first session of the Sixtieth Congress.

The conference report on the public buildings bill, which had been held up pending action on the currency question was quickly brought out and agreed to. This action was immediately followed by the adoption of the conference report on the general deficiency bill, thus clearing the decks of all important pending legislation. Other measures put through were: Providing life-saving apparatus on the Farallone Islands, off California; granting pensions to the surviving officers and enlisted men of the Texas Volunteers; authorizing the issuance of guns and ammunition to the National Guard; providing for compensation to Government employees for injuries received while in the performance of their duties. Several pension bills also were passed.

Conference Report Adopted.

Immediately after the official announcement in the House of the agreement by the Senate to the conference report on the currency legislation, Mr. Cannon recognized Mr. Bartholdt, Missouri, who called up the conference report on the measure. Tremendous applause followed his request that the rules be suspended and the report be adopted. Continuing his obnoxious tactics, Mr. Williams, of Mississippi, insisted on the reading of the report in full, which consumed much time. Mr. Bartholdt explained in detail the various points of the report. Vigorous protest was made by Mr. Williams because of the fact that the conference report had been held up until to-day, in order to force the enactment of currency legislation. Mr. Williams, he said, had been "something of a running partnership between these two high potentates, the Speaker and Mr. Bartholdt."

The vote on the adoption of the report stood, yeas 214, nays 4, present and not voting 8, those in opposition being Messrs. Alexander, of Missouri; Crumpacker, of Indiana; Fitzgerald, of New York, and Longworth, of Ohio.

Williams Objects.

At ten minutes before 9 o'clock Mr. Payne, of New York, asked unanimous consent for the adoption by the House of a resolution fixing the time for the adjournment of Congress at 11:50 o'clock to-night. Mr. Payne changed the form of his request to a motion to adopt the resolution under suspension of the rules.

The resolution included the usual clause for the appointment of a committie of three members of the House to join with a similar committee from the Senate in preparing a report on the deficiency bill.

Upon Mr. Payne's motion, Mr. Williams, leading his filibuster forces toward the last ditch, demanded the yeas and nays. The calling of the roll elicited, of course, a solid support from the Republican side, but on the Democratic side there were affirmative as well as negative votes.

At 9:55 p. m. the committee appointed by the Speaker to join a like committee of the Senate to wait upon the President and inform him that Congress was ready to adjourn, reported that it had reached the White House and that the President said he had no further communication to make.

Carries Over $30,000,000.

Washington, May 30.--The conference report on the general deficiency bill, the last of the great Government supply measures, acted upon by Congress, was agreed to by both Houses to-day, which carries an appropriation of $30,718,548, of which $12,476,750 is to begin work authorized by the public buildings bill, the authorization of which carries over $33,000,000.

You need Wintemith's Tonic. Get it of your druggist. It will tone you up.

POCKET VETO.

President Puts Inventors' Compensation Bill To Sleep.

Washington, May 30.--The passage of the Government employees' liability bill and the adoption of conference reports on the public buildings and the deficiency appropriation bills immediately followed final action on the Aldrich-Vreeland compromise currency measure in the Senate to-day, and thus was disposed of most of the remaining important legislation before that body.

The deficiency bill carries appropriations aggregating $30,718,548, of which $12,476,750 is for beginning work authorized by the public buildings bill, the authorization of which carries over $33,000,000.

The President applied a "pocket veto" to the bill to compensate inventors for inventions used by the Government. Refusal to sign it killed the measure upon the adjournment of Congress to-night.

Messrs. Hale and Teller announced to the Senate at 10:30 o'clock that the joint committee had waited on the President and that he had informed them that he had "at present no further communication to make to the Congress."

The Senate passed a resolution for adjournment sine die at 11:50 p. m.

The drainage in this system is from the bottom of the ice bunker, through a pipe only 3 inches long. BOARD OF SAFETY BILL VERY MUCH ALIVE YET

AT LEAST COUNCIL CLERK, MR. NORDEMAN, SAYS SO.

NOT PROPERLY BEFORE HOUSE WHEN VOTED ON.

STOLL AND FULTON STREET.

Despite the fact that the members of the lower board of the General Council are under the impression that they killed the Board of Safety ordinance at the meeting of the General Council Friday night, C. B. Nordeman, clerk of the lower board, holds otherwise, and his minutes will show that the ordinance is still alive and in the same form that it was when it reached the lower board the last time from the Board of Aldermen. He said that the members of the lower board, in taking action on the ordinance Friday night, failed to consider the amendment to the ordinance as offered by the Committee on Fire Department, which committee reported the ordinance with certain amendments.

"As soon as the ordinance, with the amendments offered by the Fire Department Committee," said Mr. Nordeman, "J. L. Richardson offered another amendment. C. L. Otto offered an additional amendment, and J. H. Browning offered still another amendment. A vote on Mr. Browning's amendment was taken and it was adopted. Mr. Otto's amendment was next adopted, and then that of Mr. Richardson was adopted.

"Following the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Richardson, and before any action whatever had been taken on the amendments offered by the Committee on Fire Department, somebody got up and moved that the ordinance, as amended, be placed upon its passage. President Ford put the question and a tie vote resulted. The fact that no action whatever was taken on the amendments to the ordinance as offered by the Committee on Fire Department leaves the ordinance alive and in the same form as it was when it last reached the lower board from the upper board."

C. C. Stoll, a member of the Board of Public Works, was questioned yesterday relative to the contention of J. L. Richardson that Mr. Stoll should pay the cost of improving Fulton street, from Shelby street to Campbell street, on the ground that Mr. Stoll owned the property abutting that street.

"Fulton street is in very bad condition," said Mr. Stoll. "At the request of coal companies and other interests along Fulton street, the board decided to reconstruct it with granite, it being considered the most durable of all material. The improvement is to extend from Jackson street to Campbell street, and of the property abutting that stretch the concern with which I am identified owns only eighty-two feet. Owners of abutting property pay for original street construction, but the city pays for all reconstruction work. I am at a loss to know what Mr. Richardson was trying to get at by his contention Friday night."

KENTUCKY AND VIRGINIA RAILROAD INCORPORATES.

Commission Will Sit Thursday At Louisville To Hear Complaint Against L. and N.

Frankfort, Ky., May 30.—[Special.]—Articles of incorporation of the Cincinnati, Kentucky and Virginia Railroad Company, incorporated under the laws of North Dakota, were filed with the Railroad Commission here to-day in compliance with the laws of Kentucky. The railroad is a proposed line from Cincinnati to Charleston, S. C., and will be about 300 miles long. Robert Winn, of Mt. Sterling, representing the railroad, filed the articles here. Nothing is known of the line in this city beyond the facts stated in the articles of incorporation, but it is said that the line will be built within a short time.

The Railroad Commission will meet at the Steelhead, in Louisville, on Thursday to hear the complaint of the Louisville Coal and Coke Company against the L. and N. The complaint arises out of the rates now in force on coal from eastern points along the line of the C. and O. The complaint is that a double rate is charged to points close to Louisville on the line of the L. and N. tracks which are used by the C. and O. The rate to Lakeland, for instance, is higher than the rate to Louisville, the coal being taken to Louisville and shipped back to Lakeland. All the commission will be present and the hearing will be thorough.

THREE BADLY HURT IN ENCOUNTER WITH THIEF

ALEXANDER MORTON SAID TO HAVE BEEN AFTER CHICKENS.

NEGRO, HIMSELF, WORST SUFFERER OF ALL INJURED.

J. W. KOPEMEYER CUT.

In a desperate encounter with an alleged chicken thief early yesterday morning in the rear of the residence of T. B. Rudy, at 1018 First street, three people were badly injured, including Alexander Morton, colored, who is under arrest charged with chicken stealing and malicious cutting. Mr. Rudy and his son-in-law, J. W. Kope Meyer, were each cut on the hand with a pruning knife wielded, it is said, by the negro.

Mrs. Rudy heard her chickens squawking about 3 o'clock yesterday morning and hurriedly awakened her husband and son-in-law. Both dressed and rushed into the yard. After making an examination of the premises they found that a number of the chickens had been stolen. Mr. Kope Meyer had unloaded his rifle, which he carried, and put the bullet in his pocket, thinking that the thief had made his escape. At this instant Morton was discovered hiding behind a box. The negro started fleeing when Mr. Kope Meyer struck him on the head with the rifle barrel, breaking the barrel.

The negro was overtaken and Mr. Kope Meyer threw his arms about him in an effort to capture him until help could arrive. The negro drew a pruning knife and made several cuts in an effort to stab the white man. During the fight the back of Mr. Kope Meyer's right hand was cut to the bone. When Mr. Rudy endeavored to keep the negro from doing his son-in-law further injury the negro, it is said, directed a kick at Mr. Rudy's head, almost severing the small finger of the right hand.

Mrs. Rudy notified the police and Maj. Burke, night Chief of Police, and Patrolman Burke went to the scene arriving in time to assist in holding down the negro. Morton was a mass of blood from the wounds he received. Rudy probably owes his life to his son-in-law in warding off a stab directed at his back.

The lock of the chicken house was forced off with a pick and several chickens were killed. The dead fowls were found strewn about the yard. The negro was held to answer to the grand jury on two charges in Police Court yesterday morning.

THATCHER INSPECTING CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

Frankfort, Ky., May 30.—[Special.]—H. Thatcher, State Inspector and Examiner, is now conducting an investigation into the affairs and management of the insane asylums and the charitable institutions thoroughly.

Mr. Thatcher reports to the Governor covering the facts as he finds them. It is not charged that anything is wrong, but the work is merely a part of the duties of the State Inspector and such an inspection is always conducted when a new administration goes into office.

RESIDENCE BURNS JUST AFTER COMPLETION.

Paducah, Ky., May 30.—[Special.]—The new residence of the late Judge James McCabe, who had come here from the city on the Benton road, completely gutted a new two-story brick residence to-day about 10 o'clock. The residence cost about $6,000 and the finishing touches had just been completed. Mr. McCabe had no insurance on the residence, but neighbors succeeded in saving most of the household goods. The fire was discovered at noon, and in a half hour only the brick walls of the handsome residence were standing.

AGED WOMAN BADLY INJURED BY HARD FALL.

Paducah, Ky., May 30.—[Special.]—While going down steps into a cellar to get milk for supper, Mrs. Mary Green fell, seriously fracturing her skull, and bruising herself badly. Mrs. Green is 70 years old and grave doubts are entertained as to her recovery. She was knocked unconscious by the fall.

LEADING BANKER SAID TO BE HORSE THIEF

ROBERT E. GREENE, OF WAYNETOWN, IND., ARRESTED.

IDENTITY NOT DISCOVERED FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

HAD SPECULATED HEAVILY.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—A man giving his name as Frank Ross, of Chicago, who has been followed for several days charged with the theft of a number of horses at different times, was identified to-day as Robert H. Greene, of Waynetown, Ind., vice president of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of that place, a prominent church worker and owner of one of the finest farms in the county. Speculation is attributed as the cause of Greene's troubles. Several of the stolen horses were found in his possession. It is charged he has been shipping stolen horses to Chicago for some time.

Greene was arrested last Monday while leading on a street a horse which had been stolen from the barn of Judge James McCabe, of Wayne town. He had just come from a blacksmith shop. Another horse belonging to Judge McCabe was found in a barn here which had been stolen by Greene. In the barn was another horse stolen near Covington, Ind., and still another stolen horse was found near here in a pasture which had been rented by Greene.

The arrest followed the discovery of the McCabe horse by a coachman of Judge McCabe, who had come here in search of the stolen animals.

The police learned that Greene has been shipping horses to Chicago and other cities. A car stocked with hay and food, which had been chartered by Greene, was found at the station here. The day following Greene's arrest a letter reached the Waynetown bank from an Indianapolis broker inquiring of Greene about an open order for 5,000 bushels of corn. Through this letter Greene's speculations were made public. He was in jail here under an assumed name at the time and M. E. Foley, of Crawfordsville, came here at his request to see him. His identity was kept a secret until to-day. A dozen valuable horses have been reported stolen from towns within a radius of ten miles from Greene's farm.

BLAMES

Democrats For Billion-Dollar Appropriation.

CHAIRMAN TAWNEY ATTEMPTS TO SHIFT BURDEN.

MR. FITZGERALD MAKES A SCATHING REPLY.

PLAYS REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Washington, May 29.—Representative Tawney, of Minnesota, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, today presented to the House his annual review of fiscal appropriations and expenditures. The keynote of his speech was sounded in the declaration that "the insistent demands of the people and of the public service result in an increased aggregate when enacted into law," and "the efforts of the majority to maintain a policy of greater economy were frustrated by an obstructive and recalcitrant minority."

Mr. Tawney in opening said: "The annual expenditures of our Government exceed those of any Government in the world. The work of analyzing the estimates for them, of inquiring into their necessities, together with the useful inquiry into the methods of the departments in administering and in expending previous appropriations, is rapidly becoming the most important duty and the most prodigious task to be performed in connection with the legislative department of the Government."

Referring to the Democratic filibuster, which has marked the last third of the present session, Mr. Tawney said:

Criticizes Filibuster.

"It is a matter of sincere regret that to accomplish a political purpose or gain some partisan advantage the minority in this House declared itself justified in disregarding its responsibility by pursuing the policy it has followed for almost two months, under the leadership of the distinguished gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Williams), a policy which made it necessary for the majority, in order to transact any public business, to adopt rules of procedure under which no important questions in relation to the appropriation of public moneys could not be considered with that freedom of discussion and action that otherwise would have enabled this House to prevent many of the increases that were finally agreed to. As the result of these increases the aggregate of appropriations made at this session is larger by many millions than it would otherwise have been."

Mr. Tawney said that a review of the demands made upon Congress at this session showed that the estimates for the established public service and for previously authorized public works for the next fiscal year were more than $158,000,000 in excess of appropriations made for the same purpose during the last session of the Fifty-ninth Congress.

Great Record Made.

Mr. Tawney stated the total appropriations for the session to be $551,888,870. He said the total revenues of the Government, estimated by Congress to be $487,123,011; that in addition to the authorized expenditures of $511,888,870 for the operation of the Government during the next fiscal year appropriations also made aggregate for the next fiscal year $1,000,000,000.

In conclusion Mr. Tawney said: "Whatever the unthinking or the superficial critic may say, this impartial and nonpartisan historian will hereafter record and truthfully state that in the affirmative work performed and in containing against all successfully resisting unconstitutional demands upon the powers and Treasury of the Federal Government, the record of no previous session is comparable with the work of the first session of the Sixtieth Congress."

Arraigns Republicans.

Mr. Tawney was followed by Mr. Fitzgerald, of New York, ranking minority member of the Appropriations Committee. In the absence of Mr. Livingston, of Georgia, Mr. Fitzgerald reviewed the appropriations of the session from a Democratic standpoint. He arraigned the Republicans as being less for what he stigmatized as a "shameful squandering of the public funds." He arraigned the Republicans as being less for what he stigmatized as a "shameful squandering of the public funds." He arraigned the Republicans as being less for what he stigmatized as a "shameful squandering of the public funds."

Turning a neat compliment to Mr. Tawney, the Republican, Mr. Fitzgerald said: "It has been a source of keen gratification to me, working with him, knowing that his only ambition has been honestly to serve his country and to conserve the public interests. He devoted more loyal support from his own party should have been freely given, all honest men would now have great cause to rejoice."

"The Congress," continued Mr. Fitzgerald, "is now about to adjourn. This session has been the most profligate in our history. Extravagance and extravagance, the Treasury has been depleted, the public money has been shamefully squandered."

Handwriting on the Wall.

"The responsibility rests with the Republican party. It cannot evade the issue. Every energy seems to have been concentrated upon the task of emptying the Treasury and of making imperative the issuance of bonds by the next administration in order to defray the ordinary expenditures of the Government. The dreaded handwriting has apparently been seen upon the wall, and the Republican party is demoralized and shaken."

The appropriations for the next fiscal year aggregate the enormous sum of $1,008,504,834, as against aggregate estimates by departments of $1,077,449,286.

Mr. Fitzgerald quoted the estimated revenue for the fiscal year 1910 (treasury figures) as $578,128,011, "and" he declared, "we shall demonstrate later that this estimate is in all probability at least $100,000,000 too large, and that not more than $750,000,000 is likely to

H.J. GUTMAN & Co.

This is the most important sale of the season, and the one in which we put our greatest energy. The enormous business done this spring necessitated keeping the stock up to the highest point of efficiency. Now comes the time when the stocks must be reduced to the lowest point. The merchant who realizes this most is the one who always has the cleanest stock and is the most successful. Every article in the house has been reduced for this sale from 10 to 50 per cent., and in some cases even more. Take for instance Tailored Suits---you may find some $50.00 Suits reduced to $19.75 or a $25.00 Suit to $11.75.

Coats are another stock heavily reduced. Wash Suits, Lingerie Dresses, Costumes and Novelty Dresses are all re-marked for quick clearance.

If we were to itemize it would require the entire edition of this paper, and the prices quoted would be most startling.

he realized. Never but once in our history," he said, "did the expenditures of our Government reach the thousand million dollar mark. For the fiscal year 1865, when the country was in the throes of a bitter, bloody and expensive civil war, the expenditures aggregated the enormous total of $1,209,555,448, of which the sum $1,000,000,000 was for the maintenance of the army."

Training his fire on the administration, Mr. Fitzgerald continued: "After the war with Spain, under the Presidency of Theodore Roosevelt, the cost of maintaining the Government for the following years was less than during the same period when the war was waged. Evidently, Mr. Speaker, some things are expensive and some cheap."

Making a further comparison, Mr. Fitzgerald said: "Under Cleveland the per capita appropriations for the army for four years were $1.35; for the navy, $1.54; for fortification, twenty cents; the average per capita for the three years for such service, $3.30."

Per Capita Doubled.

"Under Roosevelt, in his second administration, the per capita appropriations for the army for the four-year period are $2.66, more than two and one-half times the amount under Cleveland; for the navy, $4.91, more than three times the amount under Cleveland; for fortifications, thirty-two cents, more than 60 per cent. increase over Cleveland, and the average per capita for the three services under Roosevelt is $3.90, two and one-fourth times as great as under Cleveland."

After entering into a more detailed set of comparisons at large, comprising figures from Great Britain's fiscal records, Mr. Fitzgerald continued:

"PIRATES OF PENZANCE" THIS WEEK'S OFFERING

INTERNATIONAL OPERA COMPANY WILL CLOSE.

ELEPHANTS HEADLINERS FOR SEVEN DAYS MORE.

POPULAR RESORT DRAWS.

Since the announcement of the free gate admission to women and children at White City, this popular resort has been thronged with crowds afternoon and night, and the excellent open-air vaudeville bill provided by the management for the week opening with the afternoon performance to-day, promises a much enjoyment. The new theater, built on the old skating rink site, also comes under the open-house regime. The International Opera Company will terminate their White City engagement this week, the final attraction being the musical Gilbert & Sullivan opera, "The Pirates of Penzance," after which vaudeville will be put on.

One of the most popular attractions ever secured for White City, the "Power" troupe of trained hippodrome elephants. These great animals engage daily in a new programme of remarkable feats, demonstrating their sagacity and excellent training, and give an amusing skit, either representing a swell wedding, or a battle scene, or a prize-ring episode, or burlesque acts of like nature. At 4 o'clock every afternoon these ponderous pachyderms racefully paddle in the pond, or lagoon, during which both the management has offered $1 as a prize to any person who remains on the back of an elephant for two minutes in succession. The elephants will be a leading feature of the bill for the present week. The Marriott Twins and their athletic assistants and trained horses will also be a feature of the hippodrome show, their act being re-booked.

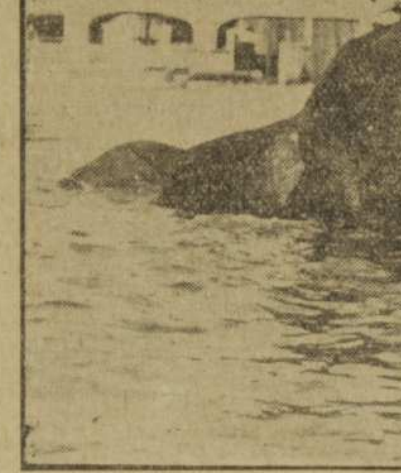

A turn of unusual interest secured for the free performance this week is the exhibition of Cameron, the Strong Man. Cameron's exhibitions were given at the St. Louis Exposition, Niagara Falls and from the Eiffel Tower in Paris, as well as in the various large cities of this and foreign countries. The most spectacular feature of his performance is a slide down an 800-foot cable attached to some dizzy height, while he hangs by his teeth. Cameron will probably make his perilous slide from the top of the electric tower. The Great Davenport, who were billed for last week, but failed to arrive in time, will be a strong attraction on the present week's programme. Their turn is a sensational act on the high wire, terminated by a thrilling journey on wheels across the wire, with an accompaniment of a spectacular fireworks display.

The Seven Russells are clever entertainers who will again occupy the open-air stage in the German Garden.

Prof. Rice's amusing dog, pony and monkey show will bid farewell to White City this week.

The big breezy dancing pavilion is provided with a good band and is a favorite resort for lovers of this exercise. The pony track, which has been added to the White City resources, is also making good with the juvenile public. The board walk features are being constantly improved and added to.

IN RECOGNITION OF FLEXNER'S DISCOVERY

ROCKEFELLER MAKES ADDITIONAL DONATION OF $500,000 TO INSTITUTE.

New York, May 30.—The gift of an additional $500,000 to the Rockefeller Institute by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was announced to-night after a meeting of the trustees of the institute. The money is to be used for the erection of a new building near the present institute. The gift makes a total of $4,500,000 given to the institute by Mr. Rockefeller. The gift was made known to the directors of the institute in a letter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who stated that his father had made the donation in recognition of the discovery of a cure for epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis about a year ago by Dr. Simon Flexner, a director of the institute. The directors have had the subject of a hospital under consideration for more than a year. As planned the hospital building will be small as compared with many hospitals as its purpose will be more the highly specialized treatment of individual cases of various diseases.

Distillery Closed.

Elizabethtown, Ky., May 30.—(Special.)—The Valley Spring distillery, of near this city, operated by Harry McDermott, closed down to-day. The machinery will probably be moved to Meade county and put in operation there.

Sugar will preserve most nearly as well as salt because it can absorb all the moisture in it.

STRAUS' SILK SALE

The first day of June ushers in the crowning Silk event of Louisville—our Semi-Annual Sale. A mammoth trade movement that has many followers, but no equals. For months we have worked and schemed with manufacturers. This one had a countermanded shipment of Silks on his hands. That one had a little surplus of choice fancies. Thus we gathered the bargain plums, all the while keeping a critical eye on quality, for shoddy has no place in our plans. To add to the magnitude of the event, sharp reductions have been made on our own carefully-selected stock, comprising Silks of every sort and style. We have not forgotten our many splendid Silk successes of former years, yet—owing to the peculiar status of the market—we can safely assert that for to-morrow we have prepared

BACHELORS AND MASTERS

Eleven of Former and Seven of Latter Will Receive Degrees From University of Louisville's College of Liberal Arts—Invitations To Commencement Soon.

NEXT week the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Louisville will graduate eleven Bachelors of Arts and seven Masters of Arts. It is able to confer these degrees the first year of its existence because it has so many students who have previously pursued courses in other universities and, consequently, enter the local institution with advanced standing. This accounts for the fact that the new college has from its opening had sophomores, juniors, seniors and post-graduate students as well as freshmen.

Granting the bachelor's degree to twelve seniors now means that these students entered last fall with advanced standing, the equivalent of three years of university work. In other words, these students here or elsewhere have completed satisfactorily four years of college or university work since graduation from high school.

The names of the candidates and the universities from which they have previously received credits follow: Miss Louise Baird, Columbia, Northwestern, University of Minnesota; Mr. Bennett M. Brigan, State University of Kentucky; Miss Marion Campbell, B. S., State University of Kentucky; Miss Kate Chamberlain, Columbia, Northwestern, University of Minnesota; Miss Olive B. Catlin, University of Chicago, Indiana University; Mr. Edward S. Poulton, Richmond College, University of Virginia; Miss Vera Cone, State University of Kentucky, Columbia; Mr. Virgil E. Simpson, Central University of Kentucky; Miss Nellie S. Ward, University of Chicago; Miss Florence Witherspoon, Central University of Kentucky, University of Chicago; Miss Inga Werness, B. S., State University of Kentucky.

Among the post-graduate students there are six candidates for the degree of Master of Arts who have received their first degree—Bachelor of Arts—Letters of Science—from the following universities. Many of these students have also pursued post-graduate work elsewhere. The master's degrees represent one year of full work after the bachelor's.

Mr. George B. Frazer, Jr., B. S., State University of Kentucky; Miss Alice L. Greene, A. B., Indiana University; Mr. Lewis Hill, B. L., University of Michigan; Mr. Ralph Hill, A. B., Albion College, Michigan; Miss Grace Kennedy, A. B., Vassar; Mr. Frederick P. Thwing, A. B., Oberlin; Mr. Arthur C. Sifer, B. S., Iowa State College.

The following invitation will be issued shortly: The faculty and graduating class of the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Louisville request the honor of your presence at the commencement exercises on Friday evening, June 11, 1908, at 8:15 o'clock at McAuley's Theater, formerly of Louisville and now of Lynchburg, Va. The following is the programme for commencement week: Monday, June 8, 8 p. m.—Bachelors service at Warren Memorial Presbyterian church. Sermon by Dr. John William Mockridge, of Lexington.

CURTAIN DRAWN

Washington Has Begun Its Summer Sleep.

END OF GAIETY AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL.

CLOSING OF CONGRESS MARKED BY GENERAL EXODUS.

DOINGS OF KENTUCKIANS.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)

Washington, May 29.—This is the last day of the session of the 60th Congress. The filibusters have ceased from filibustering, and Congress is no more. Boo hoo! The last sad rites at almost all the modish seminaries have been solemnized. The pretty fluffly ruffly frilly creatures, under a bombardment of commencement flowers, have fled to their final resting places for the summer—alas! also black-and-bustled and "all the air a solemn stillness holds."

"Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight," to continue elegiacally. Festive visits are ending to the land where the old moons go, leaving the world to darkness and to me. First of June is get-away time for the expensive and the imposing at the country's Capital.

With the ringing off of Congress dwellers on the hill to the neighborhood of the magnificent new marble pile where the representatives each have a private office are deprived of a daily afternoon spectacle, which they always awaited with the greatest zest—that of dashing Mrs. Longworth in her smart little electric runabout pulling up before the portals of her lord and master. It is a pretty little jocular scene enacted at the close of each day's session with clock-work precision, and rubberers had learned to count it as an institution. There was always a knot of the hungry-eyed to devour the presidential son-in-law springing lightly into the machine beside his wife while his day's chores were done, and speed laughingly homeward. Madame Alice never relinquishing her hold on the wheel. She drives with dash and confidence. Mrs. Longworth is taking an active interest in the new "Congressional Club," of which she is charter member, being recognized on the roster as "Mrs. Longworth, of Cincinnati," simply, with no presidential trimmings. J. B. Henderson entertained the Congressional Club at her home, "Bonanza Castle," just before the close of Congress, and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, in a pretty blue gown, democratically poured tea. In fact, the Lady Alice is rather prone to take life democratically. At a poor enough show it was, indeed—the President's daughter, occupying an unobtrusive orchestra seat, and unobtrusively bored, leaned her head back against her chair, yawned, and her heart's content. The view was a refreshment to the audience. There was an ensemble given in sympathy. It expressed the universal feeling.

The Hobsons and Their Plus.

And, congressionally-speaking, there's no more interesting couple on the map than Capt. and Mrs. Richmond Pearson Hobson—plus the baby, of course—always plus the baby. These babies aren't they curiously the whole show, even with the wisest and most imposing of progenitors.

The baby, exclaimed the hero of the Merrimack and other popular works, with parental exuberance, at a recent entertainment at the White House, "why do you know we weigh that youngster every day, and he gains two ounces daily, on an average?" And the proud father could have felt no more exultation when, as a blushing bachelor, he bottled up Cervara in Santiago harbor. "Baby fingers—waxen touches," oh, "the power of them!" The Hobsons, here, mere and file, are proudly pictured in a radiant family group, the hero holding his young hopeful. They will summer at Newport.

Then there's Bill Nye's brother. Not that he isn't himself first, of course. Congressionally and otherwise speaking, the country gentleman is Mr. Frank M. Nye, of Minneapolis, with a charming wife and four children, at the White House. His charming wife, daughters who have been in Washington this year. Miss Nye has been much admired. Mr. Nye, the Congressman, a man of most unobtrusive disposition, while not aspiring to live up to the facetious fame of his late brother, Edgar W. Nye, has a quiet and dignified drollery of his own that marks the hereditary bond between the two.

And C. Bascom Slemp, the boy Congressman from Big Stone Gap, Va., whom the prophets are placing in Taft's Cabinet. If Taft ever has a Cabinet. His has been another vivid personality all season. Mr. Slemp is an eligible young bachelor of fine social qualifications, whose remarkable congressional career began with his filling out of the unexpired term of his late father. He was subsequently elected on his own account, and has made good gloriously. Mr. Slemp and Mr. J. C. C. Mayo, the Coal King of Kentucky, are intimate friends. The young Congressman is a famous dining host in Washington.

The "Congressional Club."

That promising new enterprise, the "Congressional Club," composed of congressional women, has achieved a local habitation as well as a name. The selection of a clubhouse for future seasons was made just before the disbanding of Congress, immediately after the energetic organization had been officially incorporated by a bill in Congress. There are 200 charter members, all wives of Congressmen, except in one or two cases, sisters. The choice of a home for the club has fallen upon the Gorman residence, a handsome brick pile on K street, a few doors from the abode of ex-Secretary Carlisle. With the opening of another congressional session in December, the ladies propose to give a clubhouse warning. Mrs. James Beck Perkins of New York, the popular president of the club—her dotting lord and master says he's growing accustomed to be known as "Mrs. Perkins' husband" since all these honors have fallen upon his wife—had all her club colleagues to meet her at the Gorman house shortly after the deal was made for a proprietary inspection of the premises. There was a happy feminine fluttering about the deserted mansion, "upstairs, downstairs, in my lady's chamber," with characteristic exclamations of delight at the proximity of closer supply. If a woman was buying a church or a garage, she'd want to make sure first there were plenty of closets.

The Congressional Club hopes to make itself a social official social power of national significance, which can more than hold its own against the gradual usurpation of prestige by the gilded potentates that are pouring into Washington and divesting the capital of its inherent and ex-officio characteristics. Congressional women are demanding back their waning social eclat upon their own official territory.

Star Performers.

Celebrities are working overtime just now, appearing on the programmes of smart commencement exercises. This is a famous Washington feature. Star performers in this line in steady demand on august occasions are Minister Wu, Admiral Schley, Admiral Dewey, Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, Just-

Social Notes.

Mrs. Elsie Winn Dandridge, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William Fitzhugh Dandridge, of Frankfort, was one of the nine graduates at Gunston Hall this week. Her father and mother and many Kentucky friends were present at the ceremony. Miss Angeline Chestnut, of Danville, took part in the finals at Gunston.

The Gunston Hall Alumnae Association gave a beautiful banquet at the Shoreham. Miss Caro Maxey, whose engagement has recently been announced to Mr. James Richard Lewis, of Louisville, is vice president of the organization.

Miss Alice Derosier, of Henderson, a clever girl of fine distinction of bearing, was the Kentucky representative in the graduating class of Washington College this week. Miss Edna Gert, of Winchester, participated in the commencement festivities at Washington College.

Miss John Marguerite Mimms, of Trenton, took her degree at Fairmont Seminary this week under brilliant auspices. Miss Mimms was graduated last year from Belmont College, in Nashville. Flouring daintily in the final exercises at Fairmont were Miss Ethel Williams, a beautiful blonde, of Owensboro, daughter of Mr. A. J. Williams, a specialist in vocal music, and Miss Rachel Settle, daughter of Judge Warner E. Settle, of Frankfort, a clever young violinist. Miss Settle made a pronounced hit in a prominent role in a Japanese play recently given at Fairmont.

Misses Martha Rhodes, of Danville, and Ethel Bond, of Lawrenceburg, were participants in the final exercises at National Cathedral School.

Miss Roberta Bond, of Lawrenceburg, received her diploma this week at the Martha Washington Seminary, on Thomas Circle. "Die Lorelei" was the theme of Miss Bond's graduating essay. Mrs. W. T. Bond and Miss Katherine McKee, of Lawrenceburg, were present at the exercises.

Mrs. Harrison, of Louisville, has been occupying the chair of English literature at Washington Seminary.

Miss Elizabeth Eleanor Grant, of Kentucky, took a diploma in English at Bristol School this week. Miss Edna Rogers, of Louisville, took part in the musical and literary programme at Bristol School.

Miss Minnie Duff Stith, of Kentucky, received her degree this week from the school of nursing of the Columbia and Children's Hospital.

Among the Kentucky students at the Theological Seminary at Alexandria are Messrs. Middleton Barnwell and Clinton Quinn, of Louisville.

Miss Cornelia Overstreet, of Louisville, spent a few days at Madison Hall Seminary, on E street, a guest of the principals, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Winston, at one time of Frankfort. Miss Overstreet, a concert pianist of celebrity, a pupil of Leschetitzky, was en route to Vienna for musical advantages, to remain until the autumn.

Miss Elizabeth Winston, the 15-year-old daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Winston, whose early childhood was spent in Kentucky, the musical prodigy of Washington, gave a piano recital this week, in which she interpreted the difficult classical composers in the most masterly manner.

In Debt To Mr. Johnson.

Washington in particular, and the Nation in general, owe a debt of gratitude to the Hon. Ben Johnson, of Bardonia, for his efficient instrumentality in securing legislation for the extending of the car lines to the Union Station, which in its long-distance location from traffic has been a bugbear and a laughing stock. Mr. Johnson, a member of the District Committee, in his little five-minute speech upon the much mooted point, in a direct and forcible way so clearly presented the case that the extension was conceded at once, and the natives rejoiced.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Johnson and their three attractive young daughters have won for themselves a high place in national and social regard during their debutant year at the capital. Both entertained and entertained, they have been important factors in the brilliant affairs of the season. Mr. Johnson's handsome "scarlet runner," a Knox touring car is one of the smart machines of Washington. Mrs. Johnson displays real Kentucky hospitality in the frequency with which she shares its delights with her friends.

Mrs. Langley Ill.

Regret is felt at the illness of the beautiful little wife of the Hon. John W. Langley, who has recently received surgical treatment at the George Washington University Hospital. Mrs. Langley, petite and vivacious, is considered one of the prettiest of congressional women. She is an educationist of talent and distinction, honor graduate of the Emerson School of Expression in Boston, who exchanged a brilliant professional career for her mother, Little Miss Katherine Gunder Langley is a bonnie lassie of a year.

The Hon. Harvey Holm, of Stanford, one of the distinguished congressmen, bachelors, expects to leave in a few days for a trip to Panama. He will be accompanied by his secretary, Mr. George L. Willis, of Shelbyville.

Senator and Mrs. McCreary are going immediately to Atlantic City to spend a month for the benefit of Mrs. McCreary's health. Mrs. McCreary has been an invalid at the Ebbitt House for several months and sadly missed from the social world in which she has always been so dominant a factor. Her rooms are constantly filled with flowers and loving reminders from her innumerable friends.

Miss Frederica Morgan, a reigning Washington beauty, is visiting in Louisville her intimate friend, Miss Suzanne Hennings, at the home of the latter's grandmother, Mrs. S. K. Hennings.

Mrs. Edwin L. Price, of the Farragut, is spending several weeks with friends in Norfolk enjoying social festivities before proceeding to her old home in Lexington, where she will spend the summer the guest of her mother, Mrs. Hart Boswell. Her daughter, Miss Marguerite Price, went directly to Lexington from Washington.

Recent Kentuckians in Washington have been J. W. McCall, of Louisville, supreme trustee of the Goodwill Club; Ordier, Frank Peter, at the Willard; S. D. Bartley, Henry L. Ott, T. P. Curtis, J. J. Dunlap, all of Louisville, and R. L. Ralston, of Middletown.

DAISY FITZTHUGH AYRES.

A small theater in Kansas has dodged in a choice way the trouble of asking women to remove their hats during a performance. Its programme says that any old women in the audience who are afraid of catching cold need not remove their hats.

The Rev. Timothy Dempsey's first annual report of the Dempsey hotel for poor men in St. Louis shows that there were 1,563 paying guests and 8,086 who received free lodging. Over 2,000 meals were served.

The paper of Mr. John M. Atherton, reprinted from the Congressional Record and appearing elsewhere in this issue of the Courier-Journal, will repay perusal. It is a singularly thoughtful and clear presentation of the tangled currency question from a master-builder, who, to great business sagacity in practical affairs, joins an intellectual reach of imagination and theorization indispensable to the adequate treatment of such a subject. Mr. Atherton's central idea is a National Bank of issue stripped of the objectionable features which depolarized and finally wrecked

the old Bank of the United States.

He works this out with patient detail and his conclusions are worth the most serious and respectful attention. An eminent Kentuckian, the late Madison

Johnson, was the author of our present

National Banking System. It would be a coincidence of which we might all be proud if another Kentuckian should become the father of the Fiscal System which is to succeed it. All schemes of constructive Statesmanship being open to amendment are more or less tentative; but we confess that Mr. Atherton's plan of adjustment impresses us.

The Cartoon from Life, which we reproduce in this issue of the Courier-

Journal, is striking. It recalls the best work of Nast, with more of sparkle and less of the sinister. Old High Tariff was never pictured more comically, yet appositely, than as Barbara

Freitche, nor Teddy's relation to it more suggestively and truly than as Stonewall Jackson.

"Who touches a hair of you gray head,"

"Till after the election!"

"Like a dog, March on," he said.

"To friendly" revision!

Life is not a revelation. It is a humorist, tempered by philosophy, and a philosopher irradiated by humor. It scintillates, but Truth is its objective point, and, as a consequence, it hits both parties right and left, sometimes hitting them hard. In this admirable picture it tells the whole story of the Republican Party, and Old Dame

Protection, mothering infant industries a hundred years old.

Good Death in Shelby County.

At Shelbyville, where the grand jury has just adjourned, after indicting two men upon the charge of murder as a result of the killing of an alleged night rider, and nineteen men charged with participation in night rider raids, there is manifest the intention of the local government to govern. This is the spirit in which officers of the law should proceed. Raiders have operated twice in Shelby county and one killing—that of

Newton B. Hazlett—has occurred. Investigation of the two raids and the killing resulted in indictments in each case. The promptness and thoroughness of the work of the local authorities so far advances the county as one in which there is a wholesome respect for the law among the officials who are employed at the expense of the tax-payors to uphold it. The outlook is for final results that will tend to discourage political economists who have a fondness for prowling about by night destroying property and the peace of the community, interfering with industry, depressing the values of property and giving the community a reputabeyond the borders of the State as one in which local self-government is a failure and civilization is a farce.

It is against invasion rather than mob violence originating at home that

Shelby county is called upon to defend itself, as the disorder has been confined to sections of the county

close to the borders. Local sentiment is doubtless strongly in favor of the suppression of the night rider movement, and the State and county officials are not confronted by the obstacles encountered by officers who have attempted to institute proceedings against the mob in counties more seriously infected with, and affected by the night rider aberration. But it is largely because their failure to act had a bad moral effect and strengthened mob sentiment that officers in some of position difficult when they have tardily awakened to the necessity for restraining themselves. Nothing breeds contempt for law more rapidly than hesitancy upon the part of men responsible for its enforcement, inevitably construed as an argument by implication that the outlaw is right and the law wrong, an argument destructive of organized government and therefore destructive of individual liberty.

Judge Marshall, Mr. Pickett, Mr.

Sahford and the members of the grand jury are to be congratulated upon having taken a step in the right direction

at the right time.

The Force of Farces.

The passage of the so-called currency bill is the force of the decade.

Those who are responsible for it intend it to be, and term it, a makeshift measure.

It is certainly that in a political sense.

Congress, assembling on the heels of the panic, was profoundly impressed with the necessity of revising the currency, and it was going to make that revision "right away," its assumption that such a work could be done as easily as passing a pension bill showing that body's total lack of any real conception of the task it so glibly proposed to perform.

It soon discovered, however, that the revision was not to be made "right away." When the preliminaries were undertaken nobody agreed with anybody else as to what should be done, and how. Nobody believed that the subject—and in this everybody was about right. The session wore away.

Every attempt to formulate a plan, though only for a temporary makeshift, was abortive, and the effort was finally abandoned and Congress was about to adjourn when the cry went along the Republican line that something in the way of currency legislation must be done for campaign use.

"Something" was done in a jiffy. The caucus got busy and whipped into shape a measure which was passed by the House, with an hour's consideration. An hour's consideration to a work which the majority were unable to do, or unwilling to attempt, in eleven years!

For it was in March, 1897 that the Republican party came into power on the express pledge to reform our currency system, and it was in May, 1903, just before the national statesmen rushed for their hats to go home, that the great reform was pulled off!

The simple truth is that the Congress of the United States is utterly incompetent to give the country a good currency system, its incompetence being that of fundamental ignorance.

However much the average Congressman may assume to know of finance,

he really knows perhaps as much about it as a founder knows of trigonometry, and on this subject there is little difference between the ignorance of the Republican and that of the Democratic Congressman. There must be a period of thorough education before real financial reform can be expected from an American Congress.

The Death Warrant for the Flea.

The flea never had a good reputation.

About the best that has been said of him is Dave Harum's assertion that he keeps the dog busy and keeps him from worrying about being a dog. But we are informed by the omniscient scientist that the flea is not only a pes-tiferous insect with a pernicious habit of biting and a large capacity of dog-ging the issue, but also a bearer of the plague.

It was discovered sometime ago that the rat is a source of the bubonic plague, particularly the sewer rat.

Down in Venezuela they are paying a premium for rats of all kinds in an effort to prevent the spread of the plague, and the sewer rat is declared to be a serious menace to health in North American cities. The sewer rat is a disreputable cousin of the Norway rat, and like the Norway importation he has come to us from abroad. The sewer rat is from the Far East, it is said, and came to Europe on Venetian galleys from Asia hundreds of years ago, bringing along the deadly bubonic plague.

The sewer rat's habits are as bad as his character. Living and moving and having his family in the twilight and the darkness of uncanny sewers, germ infested, he becomes a bearer of all manner of bacilli. Paris is trying to exterminate the great ghoulish rats in her sewers, New York, Boston and other

American cities have the problem under consideration. It is a difficult task to solve, but there is a still greater task set for civilization by science. We are informed that it is not necessary to get mixed up with the rat in order to catch the plague or any other rat-borne disease. The flea gets on the rat and accumulates germs. He leaves the rat to attach himself to the dog, and from the dog he makes his way to the man. According to one of the investigators the plague is

CENTENNIAL OF JEFFERSON DAVIS' BIRTH TO BE APPROPRIATELY OBSERVED THIS WEEK

1. Jefferson Davis as Secretary of War (from engraving in the Library of Congress, Washington). 2. Custom-house and post-office in Richmond, Va. During the Civil War this building was used as the treasury of the Confederacy, and a room on the third floor was occupied by Mr. Davis as an office. It was also in this building that the United States grand jury, on May 10, 1866, indicted Mr. Davis. 3. The Brady photograph of Mr. Davis, taken in Washington while he represented Mississippi in the Senate. 4. House on G street, northwest, Washington, where Mr. Davis resided when he was secretary of War. 5. Early picture of Mr. Davis, made from daguerreotype. 6. Photo of Mr. Davis, taken three months before his death. 7. The Davis birthplace, near Fairview, Todd county, Ky. 8 and 9. Cabin John bridge, near Washington, of which construction was begun when Mr. Davis was Secretary of War, and a near view of the tablet on the bridge from which the name of Mr. Davis was cut at the direction of Caleb Smith, the first Secretary of the Interior. During the Civil War the supervision of the bridge was transferred from the War Department to the Interior Department. 10. James Jones, former body servant of Mr. Davis, now employed at the Capitol in Washington. Jones accompanied Mr. Davis when the latter left Richmond, and remained with him until a few days before his capture near Irwinsville, Ga. Before leaving Richmond Mr. Davis gave Jones the great seal of the Confederate States, with instructions to hide it. This Jones did, and he has never divulged its hiding place.

BY THOMAS D. OSBORNE.
ALMOST a half century from the boom of the opening gun at Fort Sumter, which marked the beginning of the conflict between the States, when scars of the great struggle have healed and animosities have been forgotten, the entire South this week will pay tribute to Kentucky's great son who led the Lost Cause against Kentucky's other great son, who headed the men of the North. The occasion is the centennial of the birth of Jefferson Davis, which falls on next Wednesday.

Exercises At Birthplace.

Not the least interesting of the observances in this, his native State, will be the exercises at Fairview, on the line between Christian and Todd counties, where in the near future it is hoped to have a park on the site of the Davis birthplace, with the cabin in which he first came into this world preserved for future generations to look upon.

In Louisville the Daughters of the Confederacy will mark the day by conferring crosses of honor on meritorious veterans. In the afternoon flowers will be strewn on the graves of the soldier dead in Cave Hill cemetery.

Similar exercises will mark the day throughout Kentucky and in all other communities over the country in which there live men and women whose sympathies were with Dixie in the great struggle to create a new nation below Mason's and Dixon's line.

Two Similar Movements.

It is interesting to note that at the time when the centennial of Mr. Davis' birth falls, Kentucky has prospects of seeing not only his birthplace made into a memorial park, but the birthplace of President Lincoln transformed into another great memorial. While the latter task is being done under the direction of a national organization, the project for the preservation of the Davis farm is being directed by an organization formed in Kentucky and directed by Kentuckians with the generous co-operation of the South and Southern sympathizers throughout the world.

It is especially appropriate that these two movements should be simultaneous, in view of the many parallels in the lives of the two men whose memories are thus to be kept green. Each was born in Kentucky (Davis was nine months older).

Each removed from the State in early life. Each split rails, and was a raftsman. Both were in the Black Hawk war (Davis swearing Lincoln into service). Both came back to Kentucky and married Kentucky women.

Both served as State legislators. Each was a presidential elector in 1844.

Each served in Congress. Both were inaugurated President in 1861 within a few weeks of each other, Davis on February 18, Lincoln on March 4.

With singular success Davis fulfilled every position, student, soldier, statesman, churchman; "for he wore the white illy of a blameless life."

At Washington while Secretary of War, he perfected the army regulations; improved the medical corps; increased the pay and pensions of soldiers; advanced the Smithsonian Institution; promoted forestry in the Mississippi Valley; planned the Pacific railway; infused new spirit into the army; introduced light infantry; re-organized the cavalry; introduced the manufacture of arms; constructed the Washington viaduct, without a rival as an arch in masonry (barbaric hands have cut off from this bridge his name); and made merit instead of age determine the army rank. He inaugurated American expansionism, taking Texas and New Mexico, he turned to the Missouri valley, Cuba and Central America. (What a world of trouble would have been saved if his plans had been executed). Great as his claims are to national gratitude, higher are they among the people of the South, for he was their representative in an era which will long occupy a big page in history. In Kentucky's heart he holds the sacred chamber, and in his honor the Jefferson Davis Home Association is laboring.

The Memorial Body's Work.

The purposes of the organization are set forth in a circular letter written by Col. Bennett H. Young at the request of the association and sent to every Confederate Camp.

After noting the location of the birthplace, it says in part: "Many years ago President Davis deeded nine acres of this place to the Bethel Baptist congregation, to be used by that body for church purposes, with reversion to his heirs in case the property should be diverted by that congregation to any other use."

Mrs. Margaret Jefferson Davis Hayes, the only surviving heir of Jefferson Davis, has by a deed waived all rights to the land in question in case of any diversion from the purpose for which it was intended, and has consented that either by contract or deed, the church may make use of the property to carry out the purposes above indicated. This settles all questions of title.

Lately an appeal has been made to the nation for the purpose of securing funds to make a park of the farm upon which Abraham Lincoln was born, in Lane county, Kentucky, and it is generally known that there has been a very wide, as well as liberal response, to the call for funds for this purpose.

The many friends of Mr. Davis have suggested that no better monument could be erected to the first and only President of the Confederacy than to secure the land, which was owned by his father, and upon which he was born, and make that a park, and upon this to build a monumental memorial hall to the memory of Mr. Jefferson Davis. This plan has awakened not only a great deal of interest, but has already many assurances of earnest and liberal support.

The measure and extent of the work to be done must be controlled by the amount of money which the people of the South and Mr. Davis' admirers and friends elsewhere are willing to contribute for such a purpose, but the contemplation of this work has found a ready response in the hearts of thousands of people, and the officers of the organization have received not only encouraging words, but many substantial promises.

His Sacrifices For the South.

The South can offer no honor or memorial to Jefferson Davis which he does not deserve by reason of the tremendous sacrifices he made to the people, who called him in the dark hour of the Southland's struggle to be their chief executive. In a mighty contest, such as that of the South struggling for its independence, the chief executive was bound to make some mistakes in judgment, but it is now the universal consensus of the world that for integrity, patriotism and devotion to the cause of his people he lived up to the demands which his position required of him, and no man ever exhibited nobler traits of character than Jefferson Davis. There never was uttered a word which involved his purity, his sincerity or his absolute consecration to the cause of the Confederacy. Aside from those who gave their lives, none ever made higher or nobler sacrifices than he. While remaining in the United States after the contest, he never was restored to his citizenship and he died a statesman without a country, but a statesman who had a place in the affection and hearts of his people that was limited only by human devotion. Jefferson Davis stands to-day in the history of the world as one of its purest and greatest men. It is therefore fitting that the place in which he was born should be the people of the Southland be consecrated to his memory.

The acquisition of the necessary parts of the nine acres deeded by Mr. Davis to the Bethel Baptist congregation, furnishes a starting point for this splendid work. It is believed that at least 100 acres more will be secured shortly, and that from every part of the country will come responses evincing a desire to add to this new memorial to him, who not only occupied a unique place in the history of the world, but who commanded superlative admiration among the people of the South, and those who sympathized with them in the mighty conflict they waged for great principles and for the liberties of their country.

It is proposed hereafter to place this work, as well as the control of this property, if it be so desired, under the Confederate organizations represented by the veterans and daughters and sons, and this present organization is only doing the pioneer service, and these organizations which represent not only the members, but the survivors of the Confederacy, men sent throughout the nation, and whose love and affectionate care will in the years to come see that this memorial and monumental hall and this park, thus devoted to the memory of Mr. Davis shall ever be preserved and held out to the world as a standing testimonial to the greatness of President Davis, and to the love and admiration of the people of the Southland for his sacrifices and his efforts in behalf of that people, who in one of the greatest conflicts of the ages made for the men and women of a government which only lived four short years, one of the brightest examples of heroic defense of right and honor the world has ever witnessed.

Orphan Brigade Started It.

The origin of this movement was with the Orphan Brigade at their reunion in Glasgow, Ky., last September. Following the incorporation of the Jefferson Davis Home Association, the late Gen. S. D. Lee wrote warmly commending the undertaking and was made honorary president.

The Major General of each division of the United Confederate Veterans was made a State vice president. Membership certificates are issued to all who donate one dollar or more to the fund. Several thousand of these have been sent throughout the nation,

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—While the millionaire colony of Washington is attending tea and bridge parties the real "younger set" is following its own diversions and making the democratic friendships for which the Capital City is unique.

The youngsters of society have no social feuds to support, no rivalries to pursue and no heart burnings. If so, they gurgled out their protests in the unintelligible language known only to their fond mothers and the secrets are kept within the family circle.

In no city of the United States, and perhaps in Europe, are the smart babies afforded greater outdoor privileges. It is impossible for their ultra-fashionable mammas to give their afternoons—and many of their mornings—to the "kiddies" of the family, and so the youngsters are left the greater part of the day in the care of their nurses.

While the winter afternoons afford many of the babies a few hours of sunshine it is in the springtime that juvenile Washington turns out into the park in such numbers that from a distance it is sometimes difficult to pick out these fascinating little bright-coated blossoms from the real flowers in the park. They swarm into the bright reservations and romp over the green, roll their hoops or play children's games throughout the afternoon and with the bright flowers under foot and the blossoming trees above, the effect is a fascinating panorama.

Diplomatic, official and resident society send their children into the parks, and on bright afternoons the sight is wholly fascinating. Dark-skinned little foreigners mingle with rosy-cheeked American boys. French nurses chatter with each other in their own tongue, while here and there one hears the broad tongue of a genuine Irish girl or the unmistakable accents of the old negro "mammy."

If there is one youngster in Washington who could lay claim to being the most democratic juvenile in the Capital it is Quentin Roosevelt, youngest son of the President. When Quentin is ready for school he straps his books over his shoulder, mounts his wheel and rides away just like any other American boy. He is a pupil at the Force School, one of the public schools of Washington, and when he arrives there in the morning he is just "Quentin" or "Roosevelt," and there is no disposition on his part or that of his fellow students to regard him in any other light than as just a plain American boy. Since he was a very small youngster Quentin has gone to school by himself. Occasionally during the past year a secret service man has accompanied the President's son to school and called for him later in the day.

Like his distinguished father, Charlie Taft, son of the Secretary of War, thoroughly enjoys life and goes on the principle that good friends are worth making in any walk of life. Charlie has a sunny disposition and is always ready with a smile. It's a good, big, broad smile, too, that carries with it proof of a jolly nature. Young Taft and Quentin Roosevelt are great chums and, like the son of the President, Charlie goes off to school in the morning with his books slung over his shoulder, ready to shoot mischief with the first fellow that comes along, or to "swop" his best penknife for the newest agate in the crowd. Charlie has many stories to tell of his recent world trip with his distinguished father, and he has seen many unique things which escaped the eyes of his elders. His imitative powers are keen and he colors his stories to the delight of the boys, who never tire listening to "the globe trotter."

One of the most fascinating members of the "younger set" is little Miss Kathleen de Martel, the five-year-old daughter of the Viscount de Martel, third secretary of the French embassy, and the Viscountess de Martel. Kathleen is as chic a little French maid as ever crossed the water. She was born in Paris just two years ago. Her smart little white frocks and big, drooping bangs are conspicuous among the crowd of fashionable children who each day are to be found in the vicinity of the uptown parks. Kathleen is always to be found in the custody of a genial-looking Frenchwoman whose every outline marks the beauty of the Parisian. The home of the Viscount de Martel and his interesting little family is at 1731 N. W. and from here Kathleen and her nurse may easily find their way to Lafayette Park, Dupont Circle and Connecticut avenue.

Since his location in Burlington, young Draper declares that he is happy in his present position. Since he believes in a fellow doing as his judgment tells him, in marrying the girl he loves and making his own way in the world, was the statement of young Draper to a reporter.

"If I had known as much as I do now I should have been married three years ago. Every man marks out his own life; he lives it, no one else does, and it is his right to do as he chooses. There is no estrangement between me and my father and myself. When he is here on business trips he always comes to see us."

Now they romp about the grassy way leading to the National Zoological Park or within sight of the legation building. The eldest of the children, Sherrie, a girl of twelve, is a most remarkable child. She speaks English perfectly, having learned it in the high schools of Constantinople. Frequently when she is at home she acts as interpreter for her parents or members of the legation staff. Sherrie is a student at the National Cathedral School for Girls, where Miss Ethel Roosevelt was formerly a pupil, and only comes home to spend the week-end. Much of her time, therefore, is spent in the picturesque grounds surrounding the school, which is close to the National Cathedral on the outskirts of the city.

The next in age to Sherrie is a boy, Isseidin, then comes the second girl, Stuart, another boy, Nassar, and the baby, a girl, Leila. In spite of the fact that these children come from the heart of the Sultan's kingdom, Mne. Mehmed always displays most American taste in dressing them. The girls usually wear modish little dresses, such as one would see on American children. The boys wear sailor suits, while the youngest looks just like a spunky little American boy in a "Buster Brown" suit.

The children are full of life and spend every minute of their time in the open air.

Bristow Draper Now Mill Hand

Son of Massachusetts Millionaire Earns $1.25 a Day.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)

BOSTON, May 28.—Bristow Draper, son of Lieut.-Gov. Draper, graduate of Exeter and Harvard, and one-time society idol, is now working as a spinner in a Vermont cotton mill at $1.25 a day.

Such is the news that has created a furor in Boston society, causing almost as much of a sensation as when, a year ago, the young man eloped with a chorus girl.

Lying in a humble cottage at 67 Bull avenue, Burlington, with his beautiful bride and two-month-old baby, the only son of the Bay State's millionaire acting chief executive works sixty hours each week as a common mill hand, going to his task every morning at 6:15 with his tin dinner pail in his hand, and returning at about 6:30 in the afternoon, after his day's work, to meet his fond bride, who, in spite of her husband's menial occupation, is as proud as a peacock of her independence as is the young spinner.

Although possessing the entire lot to the best society in New England, young Draper declares that he is happy in his present position. Since he believes in a fellow doing as his judgment tells him, in marrying the girl he loves and making his own way in the world, was the statement of young Draper to a reporter.

"If I had known as much as I do now I should have been married three years ago. Every man marks out his own life; he lives it, no one else does, and it is his right to do as he chooses. There is no estrangement between me and my father and myself. When he is here on business trips he always comes to see us."

"At present I am starting at the bottom, just as any laborer at $1.25 per day might do. I am in charge of no one—that is, I hold the same position as any ordinary spinner, work about ten hours each day and am learning the rudiments of the industry, just as I learned the machinery business in my father's shops in Hopedale."

"What in the world outsiders have to say does not matter to myself and mine. When the baroness goes for her daily drive at 5 o'clock in the afternoon her little daughter is almost sure to be beside her, but at other times Mela chums with her little friend, Kathleen Marion Harland's Recipes.

Crumb Cakes.

ONE tablespoonful butter, one cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. Beat the butter, sugar and egg together, then add the milk, the flour, baking powder and salt, stirred together. Beat well, line a tin with piecrust, trim even with top, pour in batter to half fill tin and sprinkle top with crumbs made as follows: One-half cup sugar, one-half cup flour, butter size of walnut; mix well.

Dutch Apple Cake.

TWO cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons butter, one beaten egg, one scant cup milk. Stir and put in a long pan, not too deep. Then press into the dough apples cut in quarters, sprinkle with two tablespoons butter, one cinnamon and small bits of butter. Bake till apples are done and eat with sugar and milk.

Apple Sauce Cake.

(Kindness Mrs. P. F. N.) ONE AND ONE-HALF cups applesauce (hot) one level teaspoon soda, one cup lard and one and one-half cups sugar, creamed; one teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves, one cup raisins, three cups flour.

Syrup "or Cold Or Cough.

(Kindness "A Friend.") FIVE CENTS worth white rock candy, two lemons. Cut lemons in halves, then strain and add the juice of the lemons. Give a tablespoonful any time in day or night.

Eggless Gingerbread.

ONE-HALF cup each lard, brown sugar and molasses, two and one-half cups flour, one cup sour milk with one teaspoon soda in milk; one teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon each salt and allspice; one cup flour.

Eggless Ginger Cookies.

(Kindness M. M. McG.) ONE cup brown sugar, two teaspoons butter, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon salt. Cream these with one cup lard. Add one cup New Orleans molasses and one cup sour milk with three level teaspoons soda in milk. Water may be used instead of cup milk. Add just as little flour as possible to roll out. Roll not quite half an inch thick.

Wellesley Fudge Cake.

ONE cup sugar, two-thirds cup of butter, three eggs, one cup milk, two and a half cups flour, one heaping teaspoonful baking powder, one-quarter cup chocolate, half cup English walnuts, broken coarsely. Cream butter and sugar, add milk, and then stir in lightly the flour in which the baking powder has been sifted. Next put in chocolate, which has been melted in a cup set in boiling water, add the nuts, and last the eggs, white and yolks beaten separately.

Fudge Frosting.

(Kindness of S. M. S.) ONE and a half tablespoons butter, half cup unweakened powdered cocoa, one and one-quarter cups confectioner's sugar. A tiny pinch salt, one-quarter cup milk, half teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter and cocoa, add sugar, salt and milk, heat to boiling point and boil about eight minutes, remove from the fire, beat until creamy, add vanilla and pour over cake to depth of quarter inch.

Lemon Sherbet.

SQUEEZE all the juice from six lemons and one large orange. Put into this the grated rind of the orange and of three of the lemons, and let it steep for an hour. Strain in a bag, squeezing this hard; add two cups granulated sugar and one pint water. Mix well and put into a freezer. Turn until frozen, pack and let it stand for an hour before serving.

Berry Sherbet.

WASH enough berries to make one pint of juice, add one pint of sugar, and after the sugar is dissolved add one pint of water and the juice of one lemon. Press through coarse lace or cheesecloth. Add sugar and lemon juice. All fruit sherbets may be made by the foregoing directions.

Bolled Ham.

SOAK it eight hours and scrub it hard with a stiff brush to get out salt and dirt. Cover with an abundance of cold water, into which you put two tablespoons of vinegar. Heat very gradually. At the end of the first hour it should have reached the boiling point. Simmer evenly four or five hours. Allow twenty minutes to every pound for a corned ham, twenty-five minutes to the pound for a smoked one. Let it get cool in the liquor and do not skin until entirely cold.

Chocolate Sauce For Ice Cream.

RUB four heaping tablespoons sweet chocolate, grated fine to a smooth paste, with six tablespoons of cream. Add two cups boiling water and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly, for ten minutes after the boil begins. Flavor with vanilla. Before using beat hard for a couple of minutes over the fire.

Self-Freezing Ice Cream.

POUR your cream, of whatever kind, into the freezer with alternate layers of ice, shaved or cracked almost as fine as snow, and rock salt. Fill to the top, pour over all two quarts of the strongest brandy. Run the freezer out of sight, cracked ice, throw a piece of carpet or a double sack over all, and do not touch for an hour. Open then and beat and churn when you have scraped the frozen cream from the sides down into the middle. Have a stout paddle made for this and work diligently for at least five or six minutes. Now close the freezer, pack it down again in rock salt and flinty-chopped ice, burying it out of sight as before, put a weight on the top, increase the pressure by fast to the bottom of the outer vessel, and let it alone for two hours or longer.

Patty Cakes.

MAKE out a light puff paste, roll it about a quarter of an inch thick and cut from it with a sharp bladed cutter, dipped in flour, rounds of pastry. If you wish six patties, cut eighteen rounds. Out of twelve of these cut center rounds, thus leaving an opening large enough to contain the compound with which you intend filling patties. Lay two of the rings on top of each of the rounds, pressing them together very lightly, and bake in a rather quick oven. They should puff up to nearly or quite twice their first thickness. If the oven is too hot, cover them for the first three or four minutes.

With Marjory in the Laundry

"OH YES! I know you would rather sit, like your charming old Boston gentleman, in the 'back yard and hear the fountain and smell the roses, and look at the nasturtiums that are putting the ugly brick wall out of business than to come indoors to see anything I have to show."

"But I ask it in fear and trembling—how would a Talk upon the laundering of summer clothes—of colored gowns that are to be so popular this season—appeal to you? I am sure it would be very helpful, for many a charming tub frock is spoiled by careless and ignorant washing. Then, too, there is the starching of dark and black lawns."

"I wonder if you see this possibility in these that appear to me?"

"MARGARET J. (Philadelphia)."

If I must be entirely honest in my speech, the subject laid so prettily and persuasively before me when I had meant to talk at my ease of something totally different does not "appeal" to my taste. I have always turned mine eyes away from beholding laundry work, as from scrubbing and window washing. They represent to the imagination dirt and the necessity of getting rid of it by heroic measures. There is no such thing as glossing over the processes of the wash tub and scrubbing pail. Coarse, malodorous dirt is there. Muscle must go to the removal of it. Having grown used to much (and more) than is not expedient to repeat here) to myself, I took up Margaret J.'s letter again. It is the letter of a lady, and she puts the case as a born lady would. She speaks of what she might have to even partially, would play a creditable part at seaside and in mountain hotels; at picnics and on moonlight verandas next summer—the "best" so soon to be "this" and "now."

In beginning the unlovely task, be sure that the gown must be washed before continuing it to the tub. Lay it at length on the table and examine the soiled portions. They are, of course, mainly in front, especially on the fronts of waists and shirtings. It is not good form to "beat" one's napkin, although as the cowboy put another matter, "Some do!" One girl who dearly loves dainty ties and labors laments that she "never pays $3.50 for a

before the linen is wet, and makes washing ever so much easier."

To set the color you would keep in, have ready a tub of pretty strong cold brine, to which add, for every gallon of cold water, an ounce of alum which has been powdered, then dissolved in boiling water. Cool it before mixing it with the salt-and-water. Soak the lawn in the tub, dipping up and down to wet it thoroughly, and turning it several times during the two hours it should have in this brine. At the end of that time shake off the dripping wet and hang in the shade until half dry. The object of getting rid of superfluous moisture before hanging the muslin on the line is to prevent the streaks that might come from slow dripping down the length of skirt or waist. To make ped in a damp cloth. It will keep moist in a pantry or cupboard. Your vegetables will not harm the meats, or vice versa. Cooked meat should be covered closely to preserve the flavor and keep off germs. Twice a week, in summer, empty the refrigerator early, and wash out with scalding water in which you have dissolved washing-soda. Then wipe dry and let it sit for half an hour, at least. See to it that no tainted or decaying thing goes back into it.

If the pipes be flushed daily in summer, triweekly in winter, with boiling water, after throwing a handful of washing-soda into the sink, the slime that collects in the pipes will be removed. About once a month it is well to substitute lime for the soda. Do this at night, and let the flushing be thorough.

A Brace of Excellent Recipes
A liberal-minded correspondent contributes a brace of excellent recipes:

Chocolate Custard Pie.
Beat together one whole egg and the yolks of three. Add to this half a cupful of sugar, one pint of milk, a little salt and flavoring to taste. Bake with an undercrust. Grate two tablespoons of unsweetened chocolate and set at the back of the stove in a saucepan of boiling water to melt. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff; add six tablespoons of powdered sugar and stir gradually into the chocolate when it is melted. When the pie is done pour frosting on top and return to the oven for five minutes.

Cream Soup.
Put a slice of butter the size of a large hen's foot in a C-sifter and let it brown. Crumble into this a soda cracker or a slice of stale white bread; brown it in the butter and cover with a coffee cupful of boiling water. Now when it is soft and smooth stir in one cupful of sweet cream; bring to a boil and remove from the fire. Add salt to taste just before serving. This is a portion for one person.

Mrs. NOTABLE (Texas).
Would not the addition of a few drops of onion juice and a little minced parsley, also a dash of pepper, improve your "soup maligne"? It would be rather insipid to some tastes as it stands.

Savory Dish
Here is a recipe for Hungarian goulash, given to me by a friend of my son. It was prepared by a Hungarian goulash for a few of his friends after an entertainment they gave in our town.

Hungarian Goulash.
Cut a pound of thick-neck steak into inch cubes; line the bottom of a skillet with onion and slice the meat cubes upon this, after they have been rinsed once in cold water, then in hot; pour enough cold water to prevent the meat from burning and cook slowly. In half an hour add a cupful of tomatoes, one of parsnips, sliced thin, and a cupful of carrots, sliced thin, and cook slowly until the meat is tender and the vegetables are not recognizable. Season it with salt and pepper, thicken with browned flour when you have let it almost dry, add water until you have a rich brown gravy. Pour over slices of toast and serve.

M. P. (Wenona, Ill.).
This recipe is so unlike others for the preparation of the national dish, I am forced to the conclusion that the Hungarian cooks call freely upon their ingenuity in getting up goulash for home and foreign customers. This is a most savory beef stew, such as the New England housewife of the olden time delighted to dish to her farmer-husband and sons on cold days. We thank you for it.

A Perplexing Problem
One of the illustrations of the Exchange published some time ago showed a woman putting lettuce, wrapped in a towel, into a refrigerator. This reminded me of a perplexing problem with which I together with many other housewives, are confronted, namely, how to prevent odors and gases generated by various products kept in the refrigerator from contaminating all the contents of the same, thus imparting ails and disagreeable flavor to milk, butter and other succulent edibles.

Moreover, is there any possible way of hindering the accumulation of slime in the drain pipe and pan? L. S. (Detroit).

Separate milk, butter and other articles of food that readily absorb taints from the rest of the contents of the refrigerator. Put them into a different compartment. Make room for them in the ice chest, if the lower compartment has open shelves. Cheese should not be kept in the refrigerator. Wrap show me if I could be coaxed out of hearing of the fountain and the sight of the flowers in my imaginary "parterre."

Having been a girl myself a century or so ago, I can picture the child standing over a pile of once "charming tub frocks," now a tumbled, unlovely puzzle. Organdies, lawns, sprigged and striped and dotted muslins—all too good to throw away, and which, if renovated cravat or other stylish neckgear that she does not spill tomato soup upon it the first time it is worn. If the waist or skirt have a white ground, or be all white, you will be amazed to find how much grime and grease may be removed by a dry cleanser. Provide yourself with a block of magnesia of the best quality and go faithfully over the fabric, not missing a stitch, using the block itself as a rubber. Lay this aside and rub-still gently—with a clean complexion brush, working the alkaline powder into the muslin. Without blowing it off, put the garment away in a close box for two days. Then shake, brush, and hang in the wind. If you have spilled ice cream or ice-cream soda on the waist or skirt, the base of the spot is grease. Apply the magnesia. It has loving affinity for oils of all kinds.

If you must wash colored organdies and lawns, set the colors as you have removed grease and grime as far as the magnesia will do it. One word here: It is a good plan to rub oily blemishes on a linen and wearing apparel with chalk or magnesia before they go into the wash. I carried home once when a child what I thought was a funny tale of an old lady not remarkable for neat housework, who called out to Sally! quick! the chalk! as the cloth was laid for dinner and she smiled a great grease spot left from a former meal.

"And a very wise thing it was!" commented my mother, who hailed gossip. "The chalk loosens the grease and dirt sure of this, large garments of draperies may be rolled lightly in a dry sheet and pressed very gently to absorb the wet. While still damp, rinse quickly in cold water to disintegrate the soap.

The rest of the process should also be gone through with rapidly. Wash in mild suds. Do not rub with soap. Rinse as soon as the gown comes out of the water to disintegrate the soap. Wash in the rinsing water. Dry in the wind and shade. To hang it in the sun would be ruin to the sensitive color.

Cover the ironing board with several thicknesses of flannel and these with very thin muslin. Iron while damp. If you allow the muslin to get dry, and then sprinkle it, you will have a "mottled" surface.

Iron colored material on the wrong side. The heat of the iron will fade it if it be laid directly upon the figures on the right side. For doing up black lawns and organdies, try this way:

Boil two quarts of the cleanest wheat bran you can buy in six quarts of water for half an hour. Cool and strain it through cheesecloth. If too thick, thin to the consistency of "real" cream, with cold water. Be careful to have it of even consistency and free from particles of husks or dust.

You will not require soap or starch. Wash and fabric in the bran mixture quickly, dry in the shade and iron while it is very damp.

ALTHOUGH we have had quite lately other communications upon the same subject, and, in fact, to the same purpose, I cannot resist the temptation to say before our readers a letter so well written and so full of interest as to commend attention from a true connoisseur who has the facts well in hand.

I notice that you have written of honey and its uses. I want to thank you personally for your interest in honey, and for the numerous notes you have given for the various recipes, all including it. However, there are one or two slight corrections that I feel ought to be made in the interest of truth. One is where you say "instead of the artificial colors of carmalum, now manufactured," etc. Carmalum is not used in manufacturing housewives. There was an attempt made to use carmalum, but it was too low a temperature. It was perfectly useless when given in the form of a tablet. It is used at all. The housewife that are usually referred to as being manufactured are made of pure flowers. But they are not composed of carmalum, but of the leaves of the honey-suckle made on the sheets of hawthorn. They are run through specially prepared rollers, which give the

FIG. E—TWO-PIECE SUIT IN WASH FLANNEL.

Summer Styles For Small Men.

HAPPY that mother who possesses the ability, time and patience to make summer raiment for her small sons. Nowhere does factory workmanship prove so flimsy and short-lived as in the wash-clothing made for boys. While there is a certain tailored air about ready-to-wear garments, the thrifty mother can afford to sacrifice this quality to durability. Only the best grades of factory-made clothing for children pay, for every mother knows the long loose stitching on cheap goods. Another defect in ready-to-wear clothing for small boys is carelessness in cutting, which often results in immediate fraying of seams.

On the other hand, the woman who makes suits for her sons can test the material by first washing a sample at home. She will also whittle and bind her wide seams from sheer force of habit, and she will adjust her machine stitching so that seams will "stay stitched."

In buying cheap ready-to-wear clothing it is almost always necessary to sew on all the buttons and rework all buttonholes before permitting the child to don the garment, and it is just as easy to work them the first time and be done with it.

Some mothers think that embroidered insignia for shields, cuffs, collar collars, etc., forms an important item in the finish of summer clothing for boys. If the home-sewer cannot do this sort of embroidery she can buy anchors, shields, etc., all ready embroidered and deftly apply them upon the fabric of the suit.

Another thing—all the up-to-date pattern firms now issue admirably constructed patterns for boys' clothing.

Cleaning a Clock.

TO clean a clock is not such hard work, although it sounds quite difficult. It is not necessary that an amateur should take it apart; that is, if the clock is expected to go again afterward.

The requirements are some benzine, a white rag, a sable brush, some oil, and a little care and patience, says the New York Times.

The benzine should be quite clean. This can be readily tested by pouring a little on the back of the hand. If good, it will dry off rapidly, leaving the hand quite clean, but if any perceptible grease remains on the hand, the spirit is not fit to use.

The oil should be the regulation clock oil sold at most stores, but if this is not to be had conveniently, the next best must do, such as sewing machine oil, cycle oil, pure sperm oil, or neat-foot oil.

The difficulty about sperm oil is that you will have trouble in obtaining it pure; in many places it is largely adulterated with kerosene.

Cut a circular piece of blotting paper six inches in diameter and fold it twice across the center. This will reduce it to a quarter round.

If it is now opened so the three thicknesses of the paper are on one side of the hollow cone and one thickness on the other, the paper may be placed in a cup or jar and the oil will be poured into it will slowly filter through. Do not use vegetable oils.

The spindles and spindle holes in the clock, and the teeth of escapement wheel are to be cleaned by dipping the brush in benzine, and after washing a part, wiping the brush on the rag and rinsing in the benzine. This should be repeated frequently, until no more dirt comes away.

After the clock has dried, proceed to oil the spindle holes very carefully. This may be done with the handle of a brush cut to a very fine point.

Before proceeding to wash the clock, all loose dust should be removed by blowing with bellows, or a fan, or dusting with a dry brush. In the last case great care must be exercised not to injure any of the parts.

Growing Peppers.

PEPPERS are so easy to grow that even in the hopelessly bleak, sooty tenement house districts of big cities they brighten the ugly life escapes wherever Italians or Mexicans happen to live. They grow without making much noise, and, as Washington Star, and when they are well up their wonderful, glossy, rich green leaves would make them not the least picturesque part of the garden show, even without their glowing fruits, or, rather, seed pods, which shine in waxy gleamings all the way from light emerald to deep scarlet in hue.

There are more than twenty varieties of peppers offered by American seedsmen, not to mention the manifold varieties of names under which each sort is hidden by various growers. They come not only in green and red, but in blacks, purples and yellows. They are of all shapes, from round to long and pointed forms.

Growing plants are sold by almost all dealers. These plants may be set out in the garden about this time. Setting growing plants is more satisfactory than seeding, as the pepper is a hot climate growth and should come to maturity as soon as possible.

The soil should be light, but not dry. Give each pepper about one and a half feet and a half feet space. The stems should be fastened to stakes, as a heavy crop will tend to break them down. If you want extra large fruits instead of mere quantity, pinch off all blossoms after the first one.

When the pepper is ripe, do not pull it off, but cut it carefully with a sharp knife. Use gloves to avoid burning the fingers, which happens not infrequently. Milk will relieve the smart, if you do burn yourself.

IF PERPLEXED IN MATTERS OF DRESS, BEAUTY OR ETIQUETTE, write to Miss Dean, Miss Morton or Miss Standish, care of the Courier-Journal, inclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelope, for reply.

This is a quicker method than having your question answered in the columns of the paper. Besides, you receive a personal, intimate answer. Be careful to address your return envelope accurately. Letters come back to us every day, stamped "insufficient address" or "party cannot be found."

and if the home-sewer is not quite sure about the correct methods of finishing off seams, adjusting bands, belts, pockets, etc., she can easily rip up or examine a factory-made suit to learn the trick.

With these few suggestions as to the economy of making the small boys' clothing at home, let us turn our attention to fabrics suitable for such raiment.

For the small boy just out of dresses, unquestionably white pique repp or wash poplin makes the smartest of "best suits," and these are in one of the most stylish, the Russian coat and baggy trousers or a full, deep-collared blouse with the same baggy knickerbockers. Only a few faddish mothers this season are making their boys wear the snug-fitting knee pants with a bare space between the knee and the top of the sock. The snug-fitting pants do not wear as well as the baggy knickerbocker, so dear to the boyish heart.

For older boys, white is little used, but there is a distinct demand for black and white check suits. Small youngsters have these checked suits set off by collars and cuffs or shields of the most vivid hues, such as grass green, bright blue, scarlet, etc. Older boys wear deep white collars with bright ties, in the shades mentioned above.

These checked patterns come in galatea cloth, imported and domestic, chambrays, ginghams, madras and chevrons. Galatea cloth is one of the most dependable fabrics for small boys and it will wear an entire season if care is taken in selecting colors. Some new designs show stripes of blue or scarlet on a tan ground, many blues that will surely wash, with white or scarlet stripes or figures, and a splendid gray and white combination that will defy summer suns and summer sand piles.

The mother of two boys tells me that she does not buy a variety of fabrics for their summer clothing, but selects two full bolts of materials up in various styles to secure variety. For instance if she has selected a dark blue chambray with a white hair-line stripe, she makes some of the little suits quite plain with stitching for a finish. Some she trims with washable white braid and adds a white collar or shield and again she makes up some with a trimming of dark blue wash braid. In this way, she secures variety in a color which she knows will launder and wear well.

well and also becoming to her boys. Windsor and narrow string ties in vivid colorings come to match narrow enameled belts, and add picturesque to otherwise simple suits. For play the enameled belt is not a good investment, as it cracks under rough usage. A plain suede belt or one of cloth to match the suit, interlined and stitched row upon row, is far better. It will hold starch so well that it does not become mussed in the first wearing. These wash belts are finished with button and buttonhole or with a plain mother-of-pearl or bone buckle, which can be bought at any notion or button counter.

Starting with two very mannish little dresses, a number of good boy's styles are shown to-day. The one-piece garment is always a time-saver for the laundress, and Figure A shows one with only under-arms and shoulder seams, finished with shoulder straps, cuffs and belt of embroidery or contrasting material. In the model the material was Holland, an excellent wash fabric in natural or tan color, trimmed with bands of tan and white embroidery. For hot weather this little costume can be made with short sleeves.

Figure B shows the checked effect mentioned above. This was developed in black and white galatea, with a scarlet belt and tie. It is far better to have separate collars with this suit because several clean collars will be needed before the sensible little suit requires washing.

In Figure D will be found one of the smart checked overcoats for small boys which any mother can evolve from a good quality of checked English worsted. This coat was in tan and brown with collar of brown velvet.

Figure E shows a common-sense every-day suit for a boy between 6 and 12 years. It can be developed in wash fabrics or nonshrinking flannels, serge or Scotch mixtures.

A final word to mothers. The day of the white shoe and stocking, except for very small boys on dressy occasions, is past and gone. The brown shoe and stocking are back, and black patent leather pumps or slippers are now worn with fine black stockings, not white.

Good Form For the Week-End Hostess.

THIS is the season of the year when the suburban and country hostess shows to best advantage. Weary city folk are anxious to escape town noises and grime, and week-end invitations are received with appreciation and favor. The suburban hostess suddenly appears in the eyes of her city friends as an angel of mercy.

She should do all in her power to emphasize her popularity, and to do this it is not necessary to entertain lavishly or to spend more money than the family exchequer will permit.

The out-of-town hostess should remember that the object of the average week-end party is rest. Therefore she will avoid fussiness and over-entertainment. She will give her guests the opportunities for rest and solitude which they will probably crave.

Select your party with care, bringing together only congenial guests, and issue your invitations so far in advance that it will not be necessary to fill out the list with an odd girl or man who may not be congenial. Do not invite more girls than men. Balance your guests carefully.

Do not invite more guests than your house will accommodate comfortably. Better a quartet of guests, comfortably disposed in separate bedrooms, than two or three girls crowded into one bedroom in modest style.

Your invitations should be written in the first person, and give some definite information to your guests. Tell them the day on which they are expected to arrive, Friday or Saturday, and name definitely the length of time they are expected to stay. Never say a "day or so." State clearly: "We will be pleased to have you with us from Friday to Monday." Generally speaking, men leave town Saturday noon and expect to return by an early train Monday morning. Girls often remain over until noon or afternoon on Monday.

Enclose a time card or state the best trains for your guests to take, and if you live some distance from the depot, and have no carriage or motor car with which to meet guests, tell them precisely what trolley car to take to reach your house, or give information as to village hacks, etc.

Suggest also in your invitation any special amusements that you may be planning, such as a trip to the country club with tennis, golf or a dance, if one is planned. This gives your guests a hint as to what they will need in clothing.

At the hour when your first guests are to arrive, be in readiness to receive them. If you have but one maid, so arrange your work that you will be dressed and on the porch or in the reception hall when the guests come in. A flurried little housewife, suggesting domestic problems, is not a restful hostess to greet arriving guests.

In each guest room have the beds freshly made, plenty of towels, a supply of stationery, pen, ink etc., and if your garden supplies them, fresh flowers in a dainty vase.

Guests will go at once to the rooms to rid themselves of travel grime, and you can send up tea or a cooling drink, as you think best. Often just a pitcher of ice water is placed in each room, and other drinks are served after the guests come down stairs.

Plan amusements for your guests that will have a distinct outdoor and country flavor. If you belong to a country club, by all means arrange a jaunt of some sort there. If your party runs from Friday till Monday and you have distinctly tired city folks to entertain, on your own porch, and arrange for your dance or card party Saturday night.

State distinctly the hour of your Sunday morning breakfast, and if you belong to the growing class of families who have only a light breakfast, such as fruit, rolls and coffee, allow your guests the privilege of eating these in bed. Even with one maid you can serve these room-to-room breakfasts very easily. If your guests are non-church-going folk do not urge the Sunday morning service upon them. They may prefer walking to the vesper service through country lanes. And if they are church-goers, be sure that you know the hours of service and the location of the various churches.

As a rule at house parties, however, on Sunday morning guests are left to their own devices, and the hostess plans nothing before the lunch hour.

Do not make your guests feel that you are putting yourself out frantically to provide entertainment. Be restful and your guests will fall under your placid influence and reap real benefit from your week-end party.

No matter how early your guests may leave Monday morning, you must be up to see them off, and your servant must provide a breakfast.

Incidentally many suburban and country hostesses now entertain only over the week-end, and servants know that work must be arranged accordingly. This leaves the suburbanite free to her own devices during the mid-week.

To Make Good Salad Dressing

CARE is necessary to make a good salad. Dressing must be thoroughly mixed, icy cold, and the ingredients of the salad itself should be daintily prepared.

In making either mayonnaise or French dressing have everything cold. Chill the bowl with ice water, and in hot weather mix in a larger bowl of cracked ice, or, if that be not convenient, at least sit in the cellar while making mayonnaise; otherwise it will be apt to curdle, says a writer in the Philadelphia Press.

Always keep the eggs in the ice box for at least an hour before making dressing and see that they are so carefully separated that not a particle of the white remains.

Patience is the one secret of successful mayonnaise. If the drop by drop principle is not rigidly adhered to until the dressing takes on substance that makes going back improbable, dire will be results.

Should the dressing curdle, begin over again with a fresh egg, mixing in the curdled part after the new dressing is well stiffened.

In making a quantity of mayonnaise it is better to thin with pieces of cracked ice rather than with lemon or vinegar, as, otherwise, it may be too acid.

Even though the dressing looks all right and has been set away for several hours in the refrigerator, be careful not to stir it before putting on the salad; otherwise you may be horrified to have it go back when just ready to be served. This is not an infrequent occurrence, but is usually caused by the rapid mixing.

If too late to start over again with the fresh egg, the only thing to do not to delay the dinner is to hastily mix a good French dressing, consoling yourself that it is more healthful after a big dinner than the heavier mayonnaise.

Rub a bit of garlic or onion on the salad bowl in making any dressing and the flavor will be much improved.

A tablespoonful or two of rich cream added just at the last to mayonnaise makes it lighter and richer.

Trinkets For the Summer Girl.

AMONG the "Fads and Follies" of the summer girl of 1908, her vivid neckwear takes the first place. It is rather wide and set with one large stone, either jade, imitation amethyst or coral. The gold in these bracelets is generally the dull finish. Stunning bangles come in a very narrow band of semi-precious stones, such as Montana diamonds (rhinestones), imitation sapphires, etc. For the girl who has a thin, scrawny arm there is nothing smarter than the new snake bracelet, which encircles the arm several times, and the head of the snake is brightened by brilliant green eyes of some inexpensive stone. This snake bracelet should be worn alone, but several bangles can be worn together.

Parasols are vivid in coloring and generally in direct contrast to the gown with which they are worn. Green seems to be the popular color, as it goes well with any gown except a red tone, and gowns with red tones should be put away until cold weather.

The smartest and most practical handle is the tinted wooden handle matching the color of the parasol itself. The embroidered white linen parasol, so popular a year or two ago, is not often seen. Occasionally they are carried by a girl all in white, but the linen is lined with the beloved through eternity. Miss Harriman's odd is enameled gold and the eyes of Horus is a fair-sized diamond, while the river is represented artistically by chip emeralds. The odd, the old Egyptian held, insured constancy, and it is an ideal gift for sweethearts to exchange. Miss Harriman's example is finding many imitators.

These silver purses come in German silver, and silver plated on white metal, costing not half what the sterling purses do. For the girl with a slender income they answer every purpose.

Next to the silver mesh purse comes the beaded purse, with metal top. MARY DEAN.

HEARD WITH ENTHUSIASM.

Washington, May 30.—[Special.]—The President's room in the Senate, which is ordinarily used by the President but twice a year, at the adjournment of each session of Congress, was placed tonight by President Roosevelt, who came to the Capitol prepared to sign measures passed by the House and Senate. The President may have wished the job, but he also must have thought of the countless bills which are passed by Congress and which he is expected to sign. In the message to Congress last March the President laid special stress upon the duty of Congress to pass, first, a child labor bill.

"Child labor should be prohibited throughout the United States," said Mr. Taft. He added that in addition to a "ability law protecting the employees of common carriers, the Government should show the good faith by enacting a law giving compensation to its own employees."

Following this the President in his message asked for laws of prohibition in labor disputes, then for an amendment of the interstate commerce law, especially the anti-trust law. Then he requested the establishing of postal savings banks, the placing of wood pulp on the free list and provisions for a waterways commission. These features embrace only one of the numerous special messages sent to Congress by the President. He ignored by Congress in all of them except an employers' liability act, and of this law the President himself says:

"It comes short of what ought to be done." From first to last the President has received nothing from Congress. Throughout he has been ignored by a Congress controlled by both branches by an overwhelming Republican majority. The expiring session proves the most expensive on record and is without a redeeming feature unless it is an example of Republican extravagance and Republican dedication to legislate upon matters demanded all over the country.

Bryan's Picture In House.

An ovation planned for "Uncle Joe" Cannon in the House of Representatives to-night was turned into a Bryan demonstration. Late spectators in the galleries, one of the lithographs of the Speaker, attached to a program, was brought in to the hall of the House by a score of Republican members. There were songs and cheers, lasting for five minutes. Suddenly a man in a Democratic cloak-door door a page issued, holding up-off a likeness of William Jennings Bryan and found by the entire Democratic membership.

The picture was carried to the main floor, where it was placed in the center of the House. The picture was carried to the main floor, where it was placed in the center of the House. The picture was carried to the main floor, where it was placed in the center of the House.

NONE BUT UNION MEN MAY BE INSPECTORS

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION IS

AROUSES GREAT OPPOSITION AMONG THE RAILROADS.

ATTEMPT TO CURRY FAVOR.

Chicago, May 30.—A Washington special to the Record-Herald says:

Acting presumably upon the advice of Secretary Edward A. Moseley, the Interstate Commerce Commission has issued a rule to the effect that none but union men shall receive appointments as inspectors under the safety appliance act. This action has aroused the greatest indignation among railway managers, who insist that it is an attempt to curry favor with the labor organizations.

The approximately 100,000 annual patronage not only places entirely within the hands of the unions the execution of the safety appliance law, but it also places a powerful whip in their hands with which to coerce the railroads into doing things that may be desired by the unions. Not so long ago a certain railroad threatened to reduce wages. Sooner afterward a force of inspectors was at work upon that road, with the result that there was a crop of fines that aggregated a considerable sum.

It is probably a coincidence that the Louisville and Nashville road has been the scene of the inspectors' great activity. Upon occasion, this road has been sued upon all sorts of cases, many of which proved not to be properly violations of the law. It so happens that of all the roads in the South, at least, the L. & N. has been the most active in opposing the Commission's rulings.

President M. H. Smith has had the temerity to criticize both the Commission and its secretary and has been actually fined with inspectors who are busy engaged in discovering violations of the safety appliance law.

The railroad officials regard the safety appliance law as a wise provision and the majority of the roads have tried honestly to live up to it. They would insist if they dared, that the law should be executed by impartial inspectors, without axes to grind. It is no secret that the labor organizations to which the inspectors belong are constantly training them to activity and to bringing into things which the law does not mention. In fact, it is charged that the labor organizations are using the inspection department of the Commission as the means of obtaining things not wanted of the railroads. Having the roads into making the charges desired, the union leaders make capital of it with the rank and file.

such men as Watterson, who is a great Democrat and a great orator. No man is his equal at expounding the principles of Democracy when he is in the mood. We need more men like Watterson in the party. Away with factionalism. Let not this be a day for the supremacy of any man, but simply for the success of the party."

Mr. Corbett was loudly cheered all through his speech and the applause was prolonged at the mention of the name of Henry Watterson. Mr. Wheeler, of Paducah; Hal Corbett, of Paducah; Urey Woodson, National Democratic Committeeman; the Hon. Jere Sullivan, of Richmond, and Congressman Ollie James, of the First district were all cheered to the echo last night as they pleaded with the Democrats of Kentucky to get together and carry the banner of the party to success this fall.

They demanded absolute harmony at the State Convention and asked that there be no contested delegates from Louisville. Through Mr. Woodson, W. J. Bryan congratulated the Democrats of Louisville upon getting together.

Each speaker said that the rank and file of Democracy of the State demanded a reunited party. Each speaker declared that Kentucky was a Democratic State and that only dissensions and personal differences among the leaders could defeat the party at the State convention last year. When the Hon. Jere Sullivan stated that the people had a right to demand that the leaders past and present get together and work for the success of the party the applause was deafening. The same outburst of cheering was repeated when the Hon. Ollie James explained that he belonged to no faction and that only strife and bickering were responsible for the defeat of the Democratic party.

All the speakers were specially invited to address the club by a committee appointed for that purpose after the club was called to order by Vice President R. G. Gregory. Urey Woodson, National Committeeman, was the first to address the club. Mr. Woodson said it gave him much pleasure to address the Old Guard Bryan Club, as he remembered many of the members back in 1896.

Message From Bryan.

"I am a learner of a message to you and all of the Democrats of Kentucky from the next President of the United States, William Jennings Bryan. He wants harmony among the Democrats of Kentucky. He has been coming to Kentucky ever since 1896 making the speech of the Democrats of Louisville getting together."

"I have never known of a convention in Kentucky where there were no contested delegates from Louisville. I hope such will not be the case at the convention in Lexington this time. Mr. Bryan wants no more divisions among Democrats in Kentucky. He asks that we forget our differences this year. I am glad to know you are coming to the National Convention in Denver. I will see that you receive every attention possible. Kentucky has not made the showing at National Conventions heretofore as I would wish. I hope it will be different this year."

Democrat Without Hope of Reward.

"I am a Democrat without expectation of reward," said former Congressman Charles K. Wheeler as he was introduced to the audience. "I am introduced because I believe in the principles of the Democratic party best conserve the interests of the people. I never intend to be a candidate. We are now face to face with the greatest issues the world ever saw."

The speaker took a great interest in the question of the future of the party. He said that the most dangerous man who has ever sat in the White House, he said that he had purged most of the good things advocated by Democrats to boost his own interests. In alluding to Mr. Bryan, he said that he was the greatest man living to-day and if elected President, and he was confident that he would be, he would make the greatest President since Lincoln. He declared that he would always be honest and unapproachable, and that he would not be intimidated by wealth or influenced by power.

"We are on trial in this campaign and must make good. Invidious enemies have entered our camp. There has been late in Kentucky which is a disgrace to the State. Let us stand now on our own as the beacon light of Democracy of the Nation. Let us select leaders not swayed by office or by hope of present or future reward. We have nothing but harmony in the State Convention. Let each man there fight for the common interest and the ultimate success of his party, irrespective of personal interest or gain."

Lay Aside Personal Feeling.

Hal Corbett began his speech by saying that the time had arrived when men should put aside their personal feelings and unite for the good of the party. He said that the Democratic party had other interests than that of aspiring for office. Said he against another man in the party who must rise above them now. What is the use of man compared with the future of the Commonwealth? No great thing was ever accomplished unless there was a compromise and concession on the part of some. It must be done if we want to see the Democratic party in Kentucky come into its own again. In the opinion of the Commission, the National Convention will be named favorable to all. We want Kentucky to come back to its own and it cannot do it unless the Democrats get together and forget all past differences. We want everybody to come back. We need

IN AIR FIFTEEN MINUTES.

London, May 30.—Birmingham, the erstwhile center of amusements, such as pigeon shooting and polo, has now taken the lead in ballooning, society's latest recreation and to-day was a scene of interesting international aeronautic contests, in which twelve British, thirteen French, three Germans, two Belgians and one Swiss balloons competed.

The geographic situation of Great Britain being such as to forbid a long distance contest, the committee in charge decided upon a point to point race. Owing to the uncertainty of the wind, the destination was not fixed until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, when Maiden Head was chosen, a distance of something more than thirty miles. A most interesting feature of the contest was the number of ladies who made the ascent and the greatest eagerness that was shown by the leaders of fashionable sets to secure places in the cars. In addition to the English women, who included Lady Seely, the Hon. Mrs. Ashurst, Harcourt, Miss Brabazon and Mrs. Capper, wife of Col. Capper, several French ladies crossed the channel for the purpose of making the trip in the air.

English Balloon Largest.

The balloons varied greatly in size, from the Belgian L'Étoile, of a capacity of 250 cubic meters, to the French Cognac, of 2,000 cubic meters, but a valve defect prevented the Cognac from ascending at the last moment. The largest English balloon was Volant, of 1,200 cubic meters.

There was an exciting incident at the start of the race, the Belgian balloon Envolade being struck by the French Cognac, which was descending very easily about 300 yards from the winning post. Griffith flew on, however, and his representative finished second. The third prize has not been decided.

Club Makes a Ticket.

The principal business transacted by the club was the nomination of delegates from each legislative district to be voted for at the mass Democratic convention to be held at Lexington Saturday. The nominations follow:

Summer Clothes

—in order to be cool and comfortable—must be light in weight and easy-fitting; but that's no reason why they should not be correct in style and well tailored; retaining their shape and not "hanging on you like a rag" after a few weeks' wear.

Our ELBEE and the HART, SCHAFFNER & MARX clothes—for which we are exclusive agents—are the kind you may depend on; the two-piece outing suits for men and youths, at $15 to $30; in tropical worsteds, feather-weight Scotchies, serges, etc.

And for still COOLER CLOTHES take the elevator to our fourth floor—the airiest and coolest sales-room in town—for a coat or coat and vest of alpaca, siciliana, silk, etc., or a pair of Kentucky tow linen trousers.

FOR THE "KIDS" to be comfortable in we have WASH SUITS at 50c to $5; and play suits and overalls at 25c to 75c; and wash pants and shirt waists of all good kinds.

SUMMER FURNISHINGS include the "Gotham" and B. V. D. loose-fitting underwear; pongee silk and other negligee shirts; gauze lisle half hose; washable neckwear; light nightshirts and pajamas, etc.

In SUMMER SHOES we have everything that's correct, in our Levy's Special $3.50 and French, Shriner & Urner $5.50 lines.

In SUMMER HATS we meet all demands in our LEVY SPECIAL $3 line; STETSON SPECIAL $5 line and our ELBEE SPECIAL $6 line; with light-weight Panamas, at $3, $5, $7.50 and $10.

Let us second the motion so warmly made by "Old Sol" and suggest that NOW is the time and also that HERE the place to buy your summer clothes.

"MESSIEURS," THE CLASS OF 1009, GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL, HOSTS TO "MESDAMOSILLES," CLASS '08

Dance At Woman's Club Yesterday Afternoon As Grand As It Was Novel.

A beautiful, but none the less beautiful, dance was danced at the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. The class of 1909, Louisville Girls' High School, had invited "Mesdamosilles," the class of 1908, to the dance. The girls were to honor the seniors, whatever it was to be last night and completely boyless and escorted by the juniors. In countless class meetings, deliberated and debated as to how they might best get around this restriction or most easily comply with it.

Everything from a plain lunch to a scaling party was suggested. Finally the liberal party won, and a dance was decided upon, albeit a boyless dance. Naturally, the dance could not be held at the Woman's Club, as the club is a ladies' club. The dance was held at the Woman's Club, the little addition to the main building, which was a very beautiful and comfortable place. The dance was held at the Woman's Club, the little addition to the main building, which was a very beautiful and comfortable place.

But it turned out to be a really enjoyable and delightful affair after all. The seniors, naturally enough, sweet and charming, were the guests of honor. The juniors, naturally enough, sweet and charming, were the guests of honor. The seniors, naturally enough, sweet and charming, were the guests of honor. The juniors, naturally enough, sweet and charming, were the guests of honor.

Most of the seniors got such bouquets, all of them had their carfare to the Woman's Club paid for them, and not in car checks. A goodly number were called for by a white-clothed and-rosebud junior—in a cab!

The hundred and odd "Messieurs" danced with the hundred and less odd "Mesdamosilles" in the fairland auditorium of the Woman's Club without a single complaint from the juniors. The seniors, whatever it was to be last night and completely boyless and escorted by the juniors. EIGHT NEW WHITE DUCKS
AT FOOT OF THIRD AVENUE.

Happens Once Each Year and They Stay About Five Months Before Departing.

White ducks appeared on the river at the foot of Third avenue yesterday for the first time this year. The ducks came all the way from Detroit, Mich., and throughout the whole trip did not have a grain of corn or drink of water to quench their thirst. There are eight of them and they are so much alike that only their keepers can distinguish them apart. The coming of the ducks is an Louisville event and they stay for about five months. When they become covered with Louisiana grime all of the eight take a bath, not in the muddy waters of the Ohio, but in the clean water of the Ohio. They are rubbed with a brush and soap at the Life-saving Station, hung out to dry and then each owner of the white duck gets a spotless head garment. Capt. William Alvord is very much pleased with the appearance of the ducks in their new hats.

You will need the Courier-Journal. Order the paper to your correct address by mail, for as long a time as you will be away. Give a definite time to send the paper. If you move, the address will be changed.

The safest way is to pay for the paper before leaving—60 cents for the Daily only, 75 cents for the Daily and Sunday, one month. This will save trouble and misunderstanding. If you close your house, be sure to order paper stopped.

FROM M'CLOSKEY'S DREAM BOOK.

M'Closkey had a dream one night. It was a red-hot tip. On how to win a game of ball. Without a dollar's risk. He dreamt the vision of angels. From heaven in answer came. And this is what they sang:

Throw 'em down, M'Closkey! Part 'em in the jaw!

Throw 'em down, M'Closkey! A la Mue McGraw!

Throw 'em down and kick 'em! Let them know you're a jockey!

That's the only way to win 'em. Go right in and throw 'em down.

And once again the scene is changed. The game is open wide. And twenty thousand yelling fans are gathered there inside.

It is the seventh inning. Number nine is a run can gain. Again the angel voices sing:

Throw 'em down, M'Closkey! Part 'em in the jaw!

Throw 'em down, M'Closkey! Kill 'em with a fury!

Let 'em know you're a jockey! Let 'em know you're a jockey!

Let 'em know you're a jockey! Let 'em know you're a jockey!

Let 'em know you're a jockey! Let 'em know you're a jockey!

AMERICAN FAR IN THE LEAD.

Few Big Batting Performances Have Been Recorded In Organized Baseball This Season.

SCHAEFER HAS FIVE HITS.

A REVIEW of the remarkable happenings that have occurred so far this season in the two big leagues shows a striking preponderance of pitching skill.

Batting feats are few and far between—great achievements by pitchers are things of daily registry. The best bit of batting done by any man to date was when Schaefer, on April 11, rapped out five hits, and the best exhibition of hitting strength, counting two days' work, was by Nichols, the Athletics' shortstop, on May 11 and 12—four hits each day.

This is how the special happenings run, day by day:

MIMIC FOUR TO-DAY AT FONTAINE FERRY PARK

HEADLINERS IN UNUSUALLY STRONG PROGRAMME.

ATTENDANCE AT POPULAR RESORT AT TOP NOTCH.

EVERYTHING TO PLEASE.

Should the present average be maintained at Fontaine Ferry "the park beautiful" will easily break all previous records this season. For the past two weeks the crowds have considerably exceeded the aggregate of visitors which has been entertained by the park in any previous similar length of time. That a combination of a park of natural beauty and an amusement resort having the famous device team to cater directly to the average American taste is apparently the factor responsible for the record recently made.

Another attractive programme is promised at Hopkins' vaudeville pavilion for the week commencing this afternoon. The Mimic Four will appear in "The Day After." Two girls and two men appear as the principals in this one-act farce, farce, comedy and dancing are mingled together, and "The Day After" is described as one of the most exciting offerings brought forth this summer.

Apparently the comedy end of the programme will be strong. The headliner, already mentioned, is said to be a brilliant of laughs. Warren and Blanchard will maintain the warm pace for fun set by the top liners. They are blackface comedians. Blanchard is a singer of ability beyond the ordinary. Miss Linden Beckwith is described as "the girl in the golden frame." Miss Beckwith could present a highly creditable performance without the aid of the golden frame. In fact, she merely uses this setting to introduce herself to the audience, and sings a number of delightful songs, each accompanied with a change of costume. She ranks among the stage beauties.

Another young woman in whom both comeliness and talent are combined will be witnessed in Miss Esmathilde. She plays the violin and also the saxophone. She is an accomplished performer on both instruments.

Joe Flynn is expected to furnish a goodly share of the comedy. He is a tried and proven favorite. Flynn is known to the "regulars" as "the man behind the book." He sends word in advance that the book has a whole lot of new stuff in it this season. The kindred pictures will have a feature film under the title of "Tommy's Box of Tools." It is said to be funny.

Miss Emma Partridge will appear again with Harry Cook's band at the free concerts each afternoon and night. It has been only two weeks since Miss Partridge was last seen here. The park management announces that her return at this early date is in response to a large number of requests from patrons of the resort. There is no denying that Miss Partridge is a band soloist worth hearing. She has appeared here so often that Louisville may almost claim her as its own. Probably no other popular singer has ever received the local approval accorded her.

During the past week "The Tickler" was one of the new devices that increased in popularity. It is a distinct novelty and may already be numbered among the established favorites of the park. Prof. Braun's performing team, another new attraction, have also proven a strong card. Dancing is a popular feature every weekday afternoon and evening.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE AND HIS FINE RECORD.

Richard Hartwell Heaton, Valedictorian This Year, Well Used To First Place.

Richard Hartwell Heaton, valedictorian of the graduating class of the Boys' High School this year, has made fine record in the school. He is a young man, who is 17 years of age, was on the honor roll in the Louisville Male High School every month for four years. During the eight years that he was in the grades his record was equally as good.

Of all the late amateur theatricals none has created more interest than the Orpheus Musical Society's production of Gilbert & Sullivan's opera, "The Mikado," which is to be given to-morrow night at Macauley's Theater for the benefit of the Catholic Women's Club.

A great cast, chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Leo A. Schmitt, will give what promises to be one of the best amateur performances of "The Mikado" ever given in Louisville. It may be said that those who have witnessed the rehearsal use the term "professional" instead of "amateur" when speaking of the fine work done by principals and chorus. The cast is as follows:

The Mikado of Japan..... Fello Webb Nanki, Foo dis son, disguised as a wandering minstrel, in love with Yum-Yum..... George Barrett, Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner..... Pook-Bah, Lord High Everything..... David J. Maloy, Fish-Tush, a noble lord..... Edw. Wolfe, Attendant..... John J. Croity, Yum-Yum..... Marie Costigan, Peep-Bo..... Imelda Shea, Pitt-Sing..... Marcella Ford, Katisha..... Bertha Rebs, Paganini..... Harry Meehan, Paganini..... Thornton Flynn, Chorus of nobles, guards, schoolgirls, etc.

The chorus of nobles, guards, Japanese

Edward J. Poetter, Joseph M. Hand, Farnell Barrett, Louis J. Schurz, Bernard Rechten, James B. Perry, Ben H. Imorde, John T. Green, J. R. Davidson, Edward L. Pope, Robert McBride, Joseph Glasper, Henry Veeneman, John J. Croity, William Imorde, Roy L. Gasper, John J. Croity, In Miss Mitchell's dancing class will be:

Miss Virginia's Rabbit, captain, MISSSES: Euphrasia Treher, Lalla Nuckola, Catharine Klein, Fay Helburn, Maed O'Brien, Marie Bannan, Clotilde Harwood, Ellen Shippen, M. Josephine Bull, Olga Klein, Helen Berg, Helen Salyards, Viola Cain, Philip O'Connell, of the dancing class, will sing one of his popular melodies.

Mrs. George Barrett, the accompanist for the opera, deserves unlimited praise for her fine work at the rehearsals. Her steady never failed. She will preside at the piano on the night of the performance.

Mrs. William Meehan and Mrs. Kate Newman, of the entertainment committee, have worked unceasingly toward the success of the opera, as has also Mr. William Meehan. From all indications a large and brilliant audience will fill Macauley's Theater.

HOGAN SIZES UP BIG BOUT

Chicago Referee Says Fight Will Decide Condition of Gans.

NELSON TO BE THE OUTSIDER.

Chances That Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson May Meet After All Seem Good.

OTHER CHAT OF THE RING.

JOE GANS and Battling Nelson are to clash again, and the entire following of the little game will sit back and await the bout on July 4.

which will decide whether Gans has "gone back" as many have claimed. It is true that the manager of the lightweight class did not show any indications that he had lost his skill when he met Unholtz, but many believe that his chances will be lessened in so long a fight. Gans writes Malachy Hogan in the Chicago Record-Herald:

Nelson is one of the hardest men in the ring to hurt. He can be staggered by a blow but not shaken. He will come back immediately after with a calm smile upon his face and have both fists ready to send in the next kind of wallop. Gans probably has the snappier punch of the two—that is, he can undoubtedly land in one sharp, decisive blow. His punch is always a sound one, and that Frank can hit in the pinch was demonstrated Saturday when he pinned Lou in the eighth, with runners on first and third.

Andy Over won't play Sunday ball this year. This is the reason Smith was used last Sunday and the one previous. Some of the Minneapolis fans are of the opinion that he would be a better pitcher if Over decided to cut out the game on week days also.

Owner Taylor, of the Boston Americans, has succeeded Garry Herrmann as grand exalted ruler of fall games. What has Taylor to show for letting stars like Collins, Parent and Ferris go?

Lou Criger of the Boston club, was a very ill man two seasons back, and it was only his great nerve that pulled him through. He is a catcher through, and which made it possible for him to get into the game more often.

While Lou was ill the advice he got from the doctors was to "keep his head down" and "keep his feet warm." He followed the advice, and he is now a healthy man.

Jack Welch has been chosen to referee the Gans and Nelson bout, and this contest will go the distance. Welch is a young man and an excellent referee, but he has shown that he is not a fighter. He is a referee, and he is a referee.

Both Nelson and Gans have each posted a forfeit of $2,000. This assures the referee of the match, which will be held in the ring at 2 o'clock the afternoon of the match. The forfeit is a guarantee of the match, and it is a guarantee of the match.

Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson may get together at last. With a big purse offered, with Burns' terms agreed to, and with several clubs in Nevada anxious for the bout there is no reason why the men should not box under the same conditions.

Considering the inducements offered it is hard to see why either should do it. If he opposes Nelson, Johnson would be a small fortune waiting him. If he opposes Burns, Johnson would be a small fortune waiting him.

This bout has been talked of for so long that it seems as if it would be a foregone conclusion. It is a foregone conclusion, and it is a foregone conclusion.

Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke have finally agreed on terms for their bout at Milwaukee June 4. This is the middleweight contest which has excited so much comment and which probably will be a record for attendance in the Cream City.

That both men will be in trim is without question. Papke wanted the weight limit at 155 pounds, but Ketchel agreed to 154 at 2 o'clock when Ketchel was in the ring. He was in the ring, and he was in the ring.

One point not generally known is the fact that there is but three days' difference in the age of the men. Both are 22 years old, but Ketchel has the advantage in seniority. Both are strong and ambitious and this clash should be one of the best witnessed in this region in several years.

This will also be the most stirring bout Milwaukee has had in many a long day. So much interest was taken in the bout between Kelly and Paddy that it is a certainty the Springfield Valley boy, who seems to have transferred his attentions to Ketchel, will be the best kind of an attraction that could be secured.

Ketchel comes here from the coast with his post as favorite already established. He was made a 4 to 1 choice in San Francisco before he came to the coast, and I hear that there is a chance of some lively wagering on him in the pool-rooms out there. He has made a good hit with the coast fans, and the followers of the game here will be glad to see him in action.

"I'm after one more big purse before I quit this game," writes Tommy Burns from England, "and I don't intend to stick to it longer than I can. I want to take it, but I don't want to take it. I want to take it, but I don't want to take it."

It is understood that Tommy Burns will go to Bluffs for the fourth. Subsequently he will see what's wrong with Baden-Baden.

Ketchel and Sullivan are the only fighters on record where a government sent a fleet of sixteen battleships 10,000 miles to see them grip mitts.

LIVELY BASEBALL GOSSIP.

JIMMY BURKE has a scrappy hand of players, the Toledo Times Bee, and while they do not look capable enough to win any pennant, it is a good bet that the team will be fighting around in the first division all year.

Helmie Peitz is one of the noisiest coaches in the league, and when he and Burke get out on the lines they are as bad as Howard Wakefield and Harry Hinchman, who made the "bigs" sit up and take notice in the West.

Burke has his game playing ball. Jimmy himself isn't hitting a lick, but he's the coach with the loudest voice and will be lacing out singles before long.

The Louisville people thing they have a great twirling star, but in the Western cities, where the club has been seen, it is the general opinion that the twirling is the one weak end of the Colonel's outfit.

There are some cases at Columbia Park in Philadelphia who become slightly demoralized when Jimmy Collins makes an error. Collins will stick to this habit as long as he is in the game, and it is believed that other players will do the same. He has been seen in the dugout during the best work of his position in the American League.

Persons who think that Manager McCloskey, of the Cardinals, should be one of the owners, Barham & Bailey are entitled to another, similar effort. The same McCloskey has dug up more good players in the National League than any other manager in the National League.

Joe Kelley has given George Denny a much better team than Fred Toney gave that gentleman. The Boston team became a team when Kelley pulled off his swap with Johnny McGraw.

Bowerman, McGinn, Dahben and Browne are probably every bit as good today as they ever were. Then, Cecil Ferguson is a very fair pitcher.

Bowerman is a catching marvel. He has been behind the bat in every game since he was a boy. He is a catcher, and he is a catcher.

Andy Over won't play Sunday ball this year. This is the reason Smith was used last Sunday and the one previous. Some of the Minneapolis fans are of the opinion that he would be a better pitcher if Over decided to cut out the game on week days also.

Owner Taylor, of the Boston Americans, has succeeded Garry Herrmann as grand exalted ruler of fall games. What has Taylor to show for letting stars like Collins, Parent and Ferris go?

Lou Criger of the Boston club, was a very ill man two seasons back, and it was only his great nerve that pulled him through. He is a catcher through, and which made it possible for him to get into the game more often.

While Lou was ill the advice he got from the doctors was to "keep his head down" and "keep his feet warm." He followed the advice, and he is now a healthy man.

Jack Welch has been chosen to referee the Gans and Nelson bout, and this contest will go the distance. Welch is a young man and an excellent referee, but he has shown that he is not a fighter. He is a referee, and he is a referee.

Both Nelson and Gans have each posted a forfeit of $2,000. This assures the referee of the match, which will be held in the ring at 2 o'clock the afternoon of the match. The forfeit is a guarantee of the match, and it is a guarantee of the match.

Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson may get together at last. With a big purse offered, with Burns' terms agreed to, and with several clubs in Nevada anxious for the bout there is no reason why the men should not box under the same conditions.

Considering the inducements offered it is hard to see why either should do it. If he opposes Nelson, Johnson would be a small fortune waiting him. If he opposes Burns, Johnson would be a small fortune waiting him.

This bout has been talked of for so long that it seems as if it would be a foregone conclusion. It is a foregone conclusion, and it is a foregone conclusion.

Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke have finally agreed on terms for their bout at Milwaukee June 4. This is the middleweight contest which has excited so much comment and which probably will be a record for attendance in the Cream City.

That both men will be in trim is without question. Papke wanted the weight limit at 155 pounds, but Ketchel agreed to 154 at 2 o'clock when Ketchel was in the ring. He was in the ring, and he was in the ring.

One point not generally known is the fact that there is but three days' difference in the age of the men. Both are 22 years old, but Ketchel has the advantage in seniority. Both are strong and ambitious and this clash should be one of the best witnessed in this region in several years.

runner has a fair start, such a start as he can get on an average good pitcher. In other words, any time the runner has a lead of eighteen feet or so off any base and the ball is more than fifty yards away, said runner has an even chance to safely acquire said base.

As a matter of fact, the chances are all on the side of the base runner and all against the fielders. The runner, with a start of eighteen feet, has twenty-two feet to go. With a slide and a reach he should cover seventy-two feet in less than three seconds. The thrower must get rid of the ball, the ball must carry fifty yards or more and be true to the mark, the baseman must get it and put it on the runner all in the space of less than two and one-half seconds.

Of course, the exact results cannot be statistically computed. They have been shown in action, though. Cobb has proven their entire possibility. The point proven is that the runner has a fair start.

When the Cleveland Club was in Chicago recently Harry White and his business partner got together one evening, and after putting in a few hours at the theater adjourned to a nearby restaurant for a light supper. Who should come in but the manager of the Cleveland Club, Billy Sullivan, the crack catcher of the American League.

Catching sight of Hickman and White, the two Chicago players made for the table where the Cleveland players were seated. They were greeted with a friendly "hello" and the two Chicago players made for the table where the Cleveland players were seated.

"What is the matter, Nick?" "Why, Ed, Sullivan just hit me with a sandwich," snorted Nick, with a painful expression on his face.

"Well, a sandwich shouldn't hurt you much," cried Lou White.

"I'm not a club sandwich," yelled Nick, as he prepared to duck under the table.

The American Association pitchers are working in great form this season. Before this year only one no-hit game had been pitched in this league. Swan, the Blues' little southpaw, twirled that contest in Columbus against Cynner's champions two years ago. Brannan's performance was the fourth no-hit game in the history of the American Association.

company, but they are notable for the fact that all three are heavy hitters. George Stone is a first baseman for Cleveland, and he is a heavy hitter. He has been a good hitter all of the four years he has been with the team, and he is a heavy hitter. He is a heavy hitter, and he is a heavy hitter.

After the Washington team had taken that Saturday game away from the Athletics with ease, and while Burns was moving down Connie's swell business suit, Mr. Mack sat in the grandstand talking to an old acquaintance. As Connie looked out on the retreating forms of his players as they were hustling to their positions in the field the old manager mournfully said:

"When all the teams that are now playing in either of the big leagues there is not a one that possesses the cleverness to handle the pitcher's ball. In quantities and at most any old time, like the Nationals. And what makes this matter more serious is the fact that every Washington club in my knowledge possesses this same attribute."

"Any manager will tell you that the Washington club is an unknown quantity and that you cannot guess it at any stage of the game. It was so when I played with it. Whether there is something in the atmosphere down here that causes the Washington ballplayers to feel the best of the game, or whether it is the fact that they are a team of men who are not men, I do not know. But I know that they are a team of men who are not men."

"Such a man would bring intelligence into the treatment of some arms and stiff muscles, because the treatment of such ailments is his business. He would know how to properly care for men seeking with perspiration. His knowledge would be upon many occasions save off sickness, and he would not be out of the game suffering with stomach trouble with such a trainer in camp."

"None of the big league clubs employ a trainer. They all have rubber, and they look after the physical welfare of the players as best they know how. But they have no authority, and not one in a dozen is equipped by experience or study to look after the men as they should be looked after. They are not trainers, and they are not trainers."

The record of the DeLahanty family, with six brothers in professional baseball—Ed, Jim, Frank, Joe, Tom and Willie—probably will never be equaled. There are many cases to-day of two brothers in the game, but the most notable of which are the Tammehills, Jesse and Lee; the Hemphills, Quaker and Frank; and the Clarks, Fred and Josh. But beyond the ability to follow the game successfully seldom runs in a family.

The three Stoval brothers, who hail from Huntington, Pa., are not only all in professional baseball, two of them in fact.

It is not impossible to bring eighteen or twenty men to the scratch, ready to start fast and maintain the clip. In truth the problem is simple, but no manager is solved in a winter. He must go along the path that has been beaten in the past, instead of showing a little originality by trying out something new and different. Why not train ballplayers to play football, track and basketball? Is there any reason for this?

DUMB PLAY BRINGS HIM LUCK.

EDDIE HAHN, now a fixture in the Chicago American League, owes much of his success in baseball to a dumb play in which he and Ed Rubeck played the leading roles. It was a big factor in causing him to be released by New York and signed by Chicago.

In the fall of 1906 Griffith secured Hahn from New Orleans, of the Southern League, and he showed up in such fine form during the fall end of the big league season that Griffith expected much of him. He failed to shine early in the 1907 season and was released by Griffith. Things have changed, however, for Hahn is now a major league star, while Delahanty is back in the bushes.

Boston was playing in New York in the spring of 1907, and Chesebro and Young were the opposing pitchers. With two down and three on the bases in the first half of the ninth and the score 2 to 1 in favor of Boston, Chesebro, one of the Boston pitchers, hit a short fly to left field. It looked to be such an easy out that the New York fans started to leave the grounds. The ball would have been easy for Delahanty or Hahn, who was playing left field.

The two players did the you-first act on the ball, however, and to the consternation of everybody, Chesebro and Griffith, the ball dropped safe and two men scored, putting the visitors in the lead. The play appeared to unnerve the entire New York team, and before the third man was released, Boston had recorded nine runs and clinched the game.

Griffith left the grounds in a rage, and a few days later Hahn was wearing a Chicago uniform. It certainly was an even exchange for Hahn, who had been knocked out of the game and a chance to shine in the world's series.

It was the only case on record, however, where a dumb play advanced a player in the profession.

CONTESTS ARE HARD-FOUGHT.

TOLEDO, O., May 30.—(Special.)—Toledo and Louisville broke even here today, the Mudhens taking the morning game by a score of 5 to 2 and the Colonels the afternoon contest by the same score.

Both games were slow and poorly played, owing to the heavy grounds, caused by thunderstorms which fell in the early morning hours. Nearly 3,000 fans attended both games. A peculiar feature of today's games was the work of Pitcher Halla. Halla started the morning contest for the Colonels, but he was unable to become a factor in the game. He pitched for the Colonels in the afternoon contest, but he was unable to become a factor in the game.

While West twirled a fair game for the Mudhens, the visitors won the game by a score of 5 to 2. The home team scored the fourth inning by sacrificing to left field, scoring Kane. Score:
